DEMANDS HUNT FOR ICE PACT

Hays Prepares Price Agreement Facts for Attorney-General.

INSISTS TRUST EXISTS

Is there an Ice Trust?

The ice dealers say there is no such thing. But the Massachusetts House of Representatives has voted to investigate the cause of higher ice prices, and Representative Martin Hays, father of the order for an investigation is today to present the facts to Attorney-General Swift in a demand that he personally look into the matter of an alleged "gentlemen's agreement" between the ice companies, at the same time presenting the Attorney-General with the facts in his possession.

Representative Hays says he was stirred to action when the J. R. Downing Company of Brighton raised the price of ice in that district from thirty to thirty-five cents a hundred, while the Boston Ice Company maintained its price at twenty-five cents a hundred. He said:

The action of the Downing Company was in flagrant violation of a definite promise given before the House Committee on Mercantile Affairs shortly after I introduced an order calling for an investigation late in March. Representatives of the different companies at that time appeared and promised that the price of ice should not be raised. For that reason I did not press the passage of the order at that time.

The Downing Company, serving the people of Brighton, and the other companies serving adjacent districts offer a fine example of a "gentleman's agreement," if you can call men who enter into such an agreement, gentlemen. I don't.

If there is no such agreement, why does the Downing Company sell ice to customers on one side of certain streets but refuses to sell to customers on the other side of those streets, while the companies selling outside of Brighton refuse to cross the line even to the extent

WOMAN VANISHES AT SEA

Card of Mrs. A. S. Temple of Dorchester Found in Empty Stateroom.

SISTER FEARS SHE'S DEAD

Many elements of mystery are involved in the reported disappearance of a woman, said to be Mrs. Austin S. Temple of Dorchester, from the Eastern Steamship Corporation's steamer Ransom B. Fuller, which left Boston last night and docked at Portland today.

At Portland today a stateroom, which had been taken by a woman passenger, was found empty. In a handbag was a card with the name of Mrs. A. S. Temple, No. 17 Gaylord street, Dorchester.

That address is the home of Mrs. Etta M. Fleming and her sister, Mrs. Temple, widow of the late Austin S. Temple, a traveling salesman, who died on April 19.

Missing Since Noon Yesterday.

Mrs. Temple has been living with Mrs. Fleming since her husband died. She has been despondent. She left her sister's home at 10 o'clock yesterday morning and had not returned up to this noon.

Mrs. Temple is sixty-four.

Two straw hats are items in the mystery. One is a woman's hat, found in the stateroom. The other is a man's hat, found on the steamer's deck, and thought at first to belong to a man who was supposed to have jumped or fallen overboard.

Search of Sea Fruitless.

At 8:20 last night the forward watch on the Fuller heard the cry: "Man overboard!"

The watch gave a signal. The steamer was stopped. A boat was put over and the sea was searched by boat and searchlight, without result. The Fuller proceeded.

In the room were found a woman's straw hat, a handbag with Mrs. Temple's card, $17 in cash and a round-trip steamer ticket from Boston to Portland, No. 9,669, which had been bought at a Washington street tourist agency.

Sues Fridmann for "Cure" Pfofits

Assistant Says U. S. Tour Planned by Doctor for "Personal Gain."

NEW YORK, June 5.—Harry Benjamin, M. D., until recently chief assistant of Dr. Franz Friedmann, in a complaint filed in the Supreme Court, today said that Dr. Friedmann had informed him before the two left Berlin that one of the objects of Friedmann's visit to the United States was "personal gain and profit, all according to the law of the United States."

Benjamin has brought suit against Friedmann for a share of the profits from the commercial exploitations of the new famous "turtle serum." He asserts that a share was promised him by Friedmann as part of the consideration to induce Benjamin to enter the employ of Friedmann.

He asks an accounting from Dr. Friedmann for a share of the profits found to be due to himself and the costs of his suit.

EQUALITY DEMAND BY TOKIO

Washington Embarrassed Over Terms in Which to Couch Inevitable Refusal.

CRISIS IS AGAIN ACUTE

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Japan's new protest against the California alien land legislation today brought the administration face to face with what is probably the most difficult and critical diplomatic problem in American history.

As the Japanese situation stands today, it is impossible for the United States to grant the demands of the Tokio government, and it is just as impossible for the State Department at the present time to tell the blunt truth to Japan.

It is admitted in official circles that the plain statement of the fact will be necessary before the controversy is settled, but that when it is made, Japan is sure to be offended. This is why diplomats here look upon the crisis as one "loaded with dynamite" for the administration. Today the administration is at a loss in what terms to couch its forthcoming reply to Japan's latest protest.

Features of Jap Protest.

It became known today that the features of the new note from Japan are these:

Japan totally ignores Secretary Bryan's explanation in his last reply to Tokio of the State rights doctrine.

Japan, though not requesting naturalization rights, does demand an equal basis of civilization by the granting to the Japanese the right to hold land.

Japan makes a firm declaration that it is not consonant with her dignity to take the issue to the California courts and demands that the Federal governments deal in the courts with California.

Japan claims it is on a plane of absolute equality with the leading nations of the world, and that therefore both the California and Arizona alien land laws constitute an offence to the pride, dignity and honor of Japan.

Fearful of Giving Offence.

Japan's out and out demand for the right of its subjects to hold land anywhere in the United States is expected to make more acute the present crisis. This the United States cannot grant. It is not considered politic to state this in an official document, and therefore the answering of the new protest from Tokio is a most delicate diplomatic problem. Plainly, however, Japan expects the United States either to yield or to offer some solution not yet suggested.

The question with the administration is how to word a reply which would not be a subject of offence to Japan. Apparently the State Department is now unable to find terms in which to answer Japan's new protest.

Boss Murphy Says He's Out of Politics

NEW YORK, June 5.—The well defined tip having gone forth that Mayor Gaynor is to be renominated by Tammany next Fall, Charles F. Murphy said bluntly:

"I can't discuss that; I am out of politics."

MRS. JAMES M. MUNYON, wife of patent medicine millionaire, who is suing her for divorce. She was a stage beauty. Hundreds saw her strike her husband in the face in front of Philadelphia City Hall just before they separated.

PHILADELPHIA, June 5.—James M. Munyon, the man of patent medicines, ndrdrgee, millions, and the spiralled right foreigner, is seeking a remedy in the divorce court for his domestic troubles. The well-known manufacturer of specifics has filed suit for divorce here against his third wife, Mrs. Pauline Leslie Neff Metzgar Munyon, the former vaudeville star and noted beauty.

The Munyon suit marks the end of the romance which began five years ago with the flinging of the wedding bells for the "Doctor," then sixty-two years old, and his bride, who was twenty-four.

The divorce proceedings today caused a stir among their friends, who are all the more interested owing to the secrecy maintained as to the grounds for action, the papers having been impounded by the court.

Some of the friends of the couple think that the "last straw" was the incident when the "Doctor" met his wife in the Union station here and which culminated in the appearance of both in a magistrate's court. It was said at the time that the two quarreled over the wife's alleged fondness for Martini cocktails.

Mrs. Munyon had been married before, when she was sixteen years of age. She was divorced. When she met Munyon she was a toppotcher in vaudeville and had attained success on the musical comedy stage. Her marriage to the patent medicine man was a surprise to his family.

DYNAMITE DEFENCE IS CLOSED

Case Goes to Jury After Arguments Have Been Made by Lawyers.

WAIT RULING ON WOOD

The Wood-Attean-Collins defence rested at 11:25 today, after Attorney Daniel Coakley, representing Defendant Frederick E. Attean, had put on his last witness, William M. Wood, president of the American Woolen Company, had previously rested his case and so was not permitted to present any defence. Dennis J. Collins, the third defendant, has testified as a State's witness.

District Attorney Pelletier did not present any evidence in rebuttal. Attorney Henry F. Hurlburt, representing Mr. Wood, at once moved that Mr. Pelletier be forced to specify upon which count of the indictment he wished the case against Mr. Wood to go to the jury.

Mr. Hurlburt contended that the six counts in the indictment are conflicting; that they do not allege any actual crime, and that the government had utterly failed to prove its case.

Mr. Pelletier contended that the case should go to the jury as a whole. Judge Crosby reserved his decision till after the noon recess.

William H. Proctor of the State police, Daniel Sughrue, Mr. Coakley's partner, and John Bacon, an elevator boy, were the final witnesses in the case.

William B. Watts told the story of John J. Breen's alleged attempt to get $13,000 from Attean.

Watts took the stand as the first witness of the day. He was formerly Chief of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation in the Police Department. Lately he has established a private detective agency.

Watts said Attean referred Breen to him, when Breen asked for $13,000. Watts told how Pitman accused Breen of being a "scoundrel" and of "wanting his heart's blood."

"It all sounded pretty queer to me. Breen finally offered to accept $7,000 as settlement of the suits.

"Then Mr. Attean, Mr. Pitman, Mr Coakley and myself had a meeting in Mr Attean's office and Mr. Coakley asked Mr. Pitman about the case. Mr. Pitman cried:

"'I can't answer any questions,' he added. 'I've nothing to say. Breen wants my heart's blood. He's a scoundrel—hounding me.'"

NEWPORT FRAUD WITNESS UNSHAKEN.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 5.—Antoine L. UNION CARMEN WIN FIGHT FOR '9-IN-11' BILL

The street carmen's unions of Massachusetts won their "nine-in-eleven" hour fight in the Senate today, their bill passing the third reading by a vote of 29 to 9, following a two-hour debate in which Senator Blanchard of Boston was so roundly hissed by onlookers that President Greenwood threatened to clear the gallery if it was continued.

Senator Blanchard's amendment to the bill, in which he sought to have the legal workday for employes of the street car companies set at nine hours in fourteen, was defeated by an overwhelming majority. He then opposed the main bill, which previously had passed the House by a vote of 185 to 58. Senator Francis J. Horgan of Boston defended the measure, declaring that the Boston "L" had banded the men a lemon last year in the existing nine-in-twelve-hour law."

The Senate gallery was crowded while the debate was on. Illness greeted Senator Blanchard when he asserted that the "L" always had favored the interest of the public.

To Give Concert.

Sir George Paish Sees Better Market

Says American Investors Lost Their Nerve and Caused Depression.

LONDON, June 5.—Sir George Paish, editor of the Statist and an eminent authority on financial matters, speaking of the business situation, said that one of the great contributory causes of the present condition of the market was the fact that the American investing public did lost its nerve. Sir George said:

Fundamentally London is very sound, quite as sound as New York. It is true that new issues of capital in London in recent months have been on a great scale and that a little rest is now needed to permit this stock to be digested. By Autumn the whole of the stock which has accumulated will probably have found a permanent home in investors' security boxes.

Briefly, the stringency of the capital market and the heavy fall in securities that has resulted are entirely due first to the Balkan war, which seriously alarmed Continental investors and made them wish to keep their resources liquid; and, secondly, to the caution of American investors who for informational as well as national reasons have not been disposed to invest as freely as usual. It is desirable that all responsible persons shall assist in the work of restoring confidence.

The distrust concerning American securities arises in some measure from the failure of the Interstate Commerce Commission to permit the American railroads to raise their freight rates in order to meet the higher wage rate of their employes.

To Extend Peace Treaties to 1918

Demand Union Label Urges Miss Wilson

Daughter of Labor Secretary Bored by Washington Society.

Miss Agnes Hart Wilson, daughter of William B. Wilson, Secretary of Labor, bids women demand the union label on their clothing. Miss Wilson addressed the National Women's Trade Union League at St. Louis, saying:

I do not favor the boycott, but I do urge that we start a movement to bring out the garment makers' label on women's clothing. The names of all union makers should be mentioned prominently in the official publication of this league.

About Washington society life Miss Wilson said:

I had to quit as my father's secretary when he received his portfolio. My mother is unable to perform the duties of hostess, and I must serve in her places. Washington society life bores me. I would far rather be back at work as a stenographer.

SWIFT CALLS PUBLIC TO GIVE ICE PRICE FACTS

of selling on both sides of a street which the line divides? Parts of Harvard avenue and of Commonwealth avenue are where this telltale complication has existed.

Believes There is Trust.

There is a similar state of affairs in Lynn. A grocer there has written to me saying that his store is on one side of a street and his house on the other, but he has to buy from different companies because of the so-called "gentlemen's agreement."

The situation is surely one that calls for a State-wide investigation such as I shall today demand from the Attorney-General, backed by the authority of the legislative order.

One correspondent writes me that the Highland Co-operative Company has raised the price of ice in West Roxbury. Another says that the J. Frank Pope Company has also raised the price, and enjoys a monopoly of a certain district, where consumers cannot buy from other firms.

Is there an Ice Trust? I firmly believe that there is, and that before we are through with this investigation we shall be able to prove it conclusively.

President Frank J. Barrett of the Boston Ice Company declares that his concern has active competitors in Boston, and that it sells ice at wholesale for retailing in Boston to the Independent Ice Company, the Dorchester Ice Company, the Morrill-Atwood Ice Company of Charlestown, as well as to several one-team concerns.

On the voyage over, Lady Spring-Rice became a tremendous favorite with her fellow-passengers, who included many of Boston's Back Bay set. Her simplicity and sweetness of manner won all.

Sir Cecil said that they would be in Boston two or three hours before leaving for the Parsons estate, which he has leased at Dublin, N. H., for the Summer.

GUARD EPSOM COURSE FROM MILITANTS

EPSOM, Eng., June 5.—Precautions of the most drastic nature were taken today to safeguard the Epsom Downs race course to prevent a repetition of the disaster of yesterday when a militant suffragette tried to break up the running of the Derby. The side lines, marking the limit to which spectators might approach the track, were moved back and scores of policemen were put on duty.

The chief event on the program today was the Coronation Cup worth $1,000, with $1,000 added. It was won by T. Pilkington's Prince Palatine, with Sol Joel's Long Set, second and P. F. Haybourn's Cigar, third.

Harry Payne Whitney's Harmonicus ran second to H. Chaimonderley's Meditator in the $5,000 Royal Stakes.

F. H. Wise's Stornoway won the Great Surrey Foal Stakes of $5,000. Absurdity ran second; Sunnyland third.

Lawson Dog Here As Lawson Rival

English Bull Worth $5,000 Comes on Franconia for American Honors.

Lansing Centurion from London, the $5,000 son of Thomas W. Lawson's champion English bulldog Centaur, arrived today on the Cunard liner Franconia, to be shown in bench competitions in this country and possibly to be a rival of his distinguished daddy for blue ribbon honors.

Lansing Centurion is the property of L. V. Waters, a British exhibitor of blooded dogs. Mr. Waters also brought another $5,000 canine, Queen Elsie, an English bull, with two puppies.

Last January, when Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Lawson were abroad, Mr. Lawson purchased several dogs for the Dreamwold Kennels. Among them was Centaur, who had never been beaten in his class in England and who was thereby an English champion bulldog, though not a champion in this country.

Centaur was adjudged the best dog in the April bench show in Mechanics Hall of the Eastern Kennel Club.

Last Saturday, at the sixth open show of the Bulldog Breeders' Association of America, Centaur was entered against the best bulldogs in the land, such as Strathday Prince Albert, the Chicago champion; Dreamwold Blunderbuss, the fawn-colored beauty from the Lawson kennels, and others.

The blue ribbon went to Dreamwold Blunderbuss and Centaur had to be content with a reserve.

Firemen Fail to Get Cat from Tree

"Tabbie," the pet tiger cat of the Franklin Square House, successfully defied the efforts of amateur tree climbers and a squad of firemen to bring her down from the topmost limbs of a tree in Franklin square yesterday. Captain Patrick Kelly of ladder 13 sent up a ladder truck, and when the fire laddies mounted the long ladder the cat moved off to the tender twigs, where she was safe from pursuit. "Tabbie" was still up the tree when the firemen drove off.

MISS MARY M. LUMAN, Salt Lake City society girl, who says that the life of the average New York society girl is appalling.

Utah Girl Hits New York Society

Lack Serious Interests and Work, Her Study Reveals.

By COUNT DE BAAUFORT.

NEW YORK, June 5.—As far as I have been able to observe it, the life of the average New York society or 'smart society girl is so thoroughly lacking in any serious interest or any serious occupation that it is appalling to me," said Miss Mary Monteth Luman, a young society woman of Salt Lake City, who is at the Waldorf-Astoria.

"The daily program of these girls," she said, "does not allow them any time to improve their minds or to give any thought to their unfortunate sisters.

"The loveliest, the most wonderful experience I ever had occurred last Winter. A little newspaper boy had been knocked down by an automobile and was seriously hurt. Among other things I sent him several books. One night a scribbled note informed me he had been asking and asking for hours to see me. So of course off I went.

"I noticed he did not say a word, but kept on staring at me. Finally I asked him why. In a low voice he said:

"'Ah, I just love to look at you. You look just like some of them queens and duchesses and countesses of the picture books you sent me. It's like a dream. Just let me touch you so I'll know that it isn't a dream.'

"Now that to me is worth all the theatres and dinners and dances in a heap."

Many of New York's Teachers Can't Spell

NEW YORK, June 5.—The astounding fact that many of the teachers in the grammar schools here are ignorant of the fundamental principles of spelling, grammar and punctuation, and have no knowledge of the proper forms for letter writing, has been discovered by a committee investigating the schools. The committee examined letters on the files of the city paymaster. Here are some extracts:

"I went to the School to dy to find my check. I was told to write to you and you would send me a receipt to sign which I believe I have to return before you send check. . . Trusting this will meet your approval . . ."

"Pay roll" was spelled "pay-roof" and "pay-role."

Here are a few other mistakes:

"Correspondence," "leaving" (for "living"), "hoping these information," "did notified," "transfered."

Delay Customs Changes.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Senator Fletcher today was instructed to ask the Senate for immediate consideration of the bill postponing for six months the enforcement of the proposed reorganization of the customs service as ordered by President Taft. This action was taken in compliance with a letter to Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo.

Governor Foss has signed a resolve to recompense Dr. J. William Voss of Beverly to the sum of $580.48 for services rendered as State inspector of Health since last year when his district was abolished by the State Board of Health. The Governor's approval of the measure is a rebuke to the State Board.

SOCIETY FOLK RETURN UPON THE FRANCONIA

Boston society people figured prominently on the saloon list of the Cunard liner Franconia, which arrived today from Liverpool and Queenstown, via Portland, Me.

Among them were Alanson Bigelow, Jr., and Mrs. Bigelow, H. G. Brooks and family, Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Dalton, Mr. and Mrs. George M. Eggleston of Brookline, George B. Emmons of Brookline, Miss Elizabeth Parker, Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Peabody and Miss Amy Peabody, Miss Rose Lee Saltonstall, Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Sears, Herbert M. Sears and Miss Phyllis Sears, Miss Ray Slater, daughter of Mrs. Mabel Hunt Slater, Mr. and Mrs. C. Minot Weld, Mrs. Roger Wolcott and her son, William P. Walcott.

Miss Dorothy Jordan returned to be bridesmaid for Miss Rosamond Dixey, who is to be married to Gorham Brooks Saturday at Lenox.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph G. Taorp of Cambridge and their four daughters returned. Mrs. Thorp was Miss Amile A. Longfellow, one of the daughters of the poet.

Lady Spring-Rice, wife of Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British Ambassador to Washington, was aboard with her two children. They were met, when the boat touched at Portland, by Sir Cecil, who accompanied them to Boston.

Charles Francis Adams, the Boston historian, returned from delivering four lectures at Oxford University. The boat put in at Portland to debark 1,054 out of her 2,525 passengers. The Franconia was the biggest liner ever in Portland harbor, and the city made a great time over it.

Pretty Natica Inches, daughter of Mrs. John C. Inches of Exeter street and Oric Bates of Otis place were married in Emmanuel Church at noon today. Many guests witnessed the ceremony. The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, George Inches. She wore an enveloping veil of tulle.

Her only attendant was Miss Mary Hill, who wore white embroidered mull. Walter Bradley was best man and the ushers were: Leverett Bradley, Morris Gray, Langdon Warner, Joseph Whiting, Robert Wheelwright, Henderson Inches, a cousin of the bride, and Maurice Biddle of Philadelphia. Will Keep Fighting in Russell Case

Scharton Says He Will Continue Action While Strength Lasts.

At the hearing in the Russell identity case, W. R. Scharton, counsel for Dakota Dan, the claimant, said in the course of his argument:

This case will not die while my strength lasts. We all know that even if we prevail we shall not get a cent, but we shall then go to the Supreme Court on points of law and to the ends of the earth if necessary. If we prevail we shall go to the court and ask for a construction of the will and the fight will begin all over again.

Continuing Mr. Scharton declared that there was no reason why Ferdinand B. Almy should recognize Fresno Dan or Dakota Dan, for his acquaintance with Daniel Blake Russell had been very limited. He said:

It is a travesty to say that Mrs. Mary Russell looks like Fresno Dan. In her life she never would have associated with him.

Postcard Pictures of Slain Man Held

MILFORD, June 5.—Postmaster George G. Cook of this town today held up scores of postcards bearing a likeness of Emilio Bacchiocchi, the strike picket who was shot and killed by a police officer in Hopedale on April 24. Postmaster Cook sent one of the cards to Postmaster-General Burleson at Washington with a request that he make a ruling on whether or not the cards may be sent through the mails.

The cards are being held in the local postoffice because of this inscription under the picture of Bacchiocchi: "This man was assassinated by agents of the Draper Company." With in the past six weeks, thousands of these cards have been sent to Italy and all parts of the United States by the Hopedale strikers.

CALL MORE SENATORS IN LOBBY PROBE

WASHINGTON, June 5.—When the Overman "lobby" inquiry committee resumed its hearings today, Senator Goff of West Virginia was examined. He said he was interested in coal, oil and farming lands within his State. His coal property made him about $35,000 a year and his oil holdings $50,000. He knew of no lobby being maintained in Washington.

Senator Gore mentioned "a Mr. Ovvard and a Mrs. Slaughter of Texas" as having called on him with regard to the tariff.

Senator Sherman of Illinois admitted that he was interested in farm products through a small banking business in Illinois. "I make loans on farms and farm products," said Sherman. "And in that way I may be said to be interested indirectly in the Underwood bill." He knew of no money being used to maintain a lobby in Washington. He submitted a long list of men who had called on him.

Sustain Foss Veto Of Teachers' Tenure

The House today sustained, by a vote of 106 to 39, Governor Foss' veto of the school teachers' tenure of office bill. Four votes were lacking of the 110 necessary to pass the bill over the veto.

The bill provided that, after a school teacher anywhere in the State, outside of Boston, had served five consecutive years, he or she could not be removed except on preferred charges being sustained at a formal hearing. Two Lists, after five years the teacher should hold office until pensioned.

Said He Couldn't Help Kissing Girl

NEW YORK, June 5.—Traffic in Ann street was blocked at office closing time by a crowd surrounding a man and a young woman in front of No. 47, where both are employed.

"He kissed me," declared Miss Gertrude Fusia, a stenographer. "He kissed me all the time we were coming down five floors in the crowded elevator. Then he followed me out there and kissed me again."

The man, William Donovan, elevator operator in that building, said to a policeman who arrested him:

"She was dressed all in white, and she was so darned pretty I just couldn't help kissing her."

STATE AID IS ASKED IN FOSS PLANT STRIKE

An order directing the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration to investigate the strikes at the plants of the Sturtevant Blower Works and the Becker Milling Machine Company, both of which are largely controlled by Governor Foss, was introduced in the House today by Representative Giblin of East Boston.

The order further directs the board "to report to the General Court forthwith and recommend what action should be taken to accomplish the immediate settlement of such strikers.

The measure was referred to the rules committee by Speaker Cushing. The committee is to give a hearing on the order. Hundreds of strikers at the Foss plants made preparations today to leave Hyde Park and secure employment elsewhere. The strikers held a mass meeting this afternoon in French's Opera House, Hyde Park.

TELL YOUR LOAN TROUBLES TO MR. BROWN

E. Gerry Brown, State Commissioner of Loan Agencies, issued a general invitation today for anyone bound by a note to a money-lender in an illegal case to bring the duplicate of the note or whatever papers he holds as proof of the debt the note to his office and have the case investigated.

Commissioner Brown is trying to break up what he declares is a combination of illegal note brokers, backed by equally illegal banking men. He says they have extorted money from small business men by lending them funds in small amounts at an interest rate as high as 20 per cent. a month.

The commissioner said in regard to these illegal notes:

I would like to call the public's attention to the fact that the State loan laws contain the following provision:

"Any loan made or note purchased, or endorsement or guarantee furnished by a unlicensed person, partnership, corporation or association in violation of this act (Chapter 727, Amended Acts of 1911, Section 17) shall be void if bearing interest in excess of 12 per cent."

In other words, no note of $300 or under, if made by an unlicensed money lender at over 12 per cent. interest, can be collected, not even the principal, to say nothing of the interest.

I wish the people who have been victimized and who have borrowed money at over 32 per cent. from unlicensed money lenders in sums of $300 or less would bring their facts to me. They are illegal and cannot be collected.

I believe that if the men who are being harassed in this way, and if the public in general will co-operate with my department in this matter, we can drive these illegal brokers and bankers out of business.

Seeks Usury Ring.

Commissioner Brown, through Clarence W. Bowley as attorney for the State, is prosecuting a charge against G. L. Robinson, a Devonshire street note broker, who is accused of making a loan of $800 or less, at interest and expenses above the 12 per cent. allowed by law. Robinson comes before the Boston Municipal Court next Wednesday on a continuance.

The Commissioner of Loan Agencies is seeking a ring of note brokers and bankers who are said to be operating as follows: When a small business man is refused a loan at one of these banks which are involved in the scheme, he is approached by a note broker. A loan is made at excessive interest and expense, the bank discounting the note, furnishing the money to the note broker and "splitting" the usury with him.

The operations of these note brokers and bankers have been so extensive, the commissioner is convinced, that they have notes out amounting to $150,000 in Boston alone.

Their operations have extended outside the State, too. A Providence clergyman is known to have figured in one transaction of $4,000.

Among the men in the ring whom the commissioner hopes to bring into the case before he is through are the following:

Would Interview Others.

A well known South Boston politician.
Two prominent city lawyers.
A millionaire grain dealer.

These men particularly are said to have discounted many notes for these illegal brokers.

A sample of the note ring's method is told as follows:

A small merchant, turned down by his bank on an application for a small loan, is approached by a note broker who is in collusion with a banking official. The broker agrees to furnish $80 in exchange for a $100 note at thirty days. The merchant agrees, the note is made and the $80 given. Then the broker goes to his bank, which takes over the note, reimburses him for the $80 and gives him $10 for his part in the deal. At the end of the month the merchant finds that the bank and not the note broker, holds his note. If he is not able to pay the note broker comes around again and offers to get the note extended for a consideration. This second payment is divided between the broker and the bank official.

Fear East Boston Boy Is Lured Away

Police Seek Two Older Lads To Explain Disappearance.

Police of Boston, Chelsea, Revere and Lynn are today searching for eleven-year-old Francis White of No. 111 Lexington street, who has been missing since Monday.

The boy's mother believes he was enticed away by two older boys, one eighteen and the other thirteen who are being sought by the police.

"You don't know how I miss him," sobbed Mrs. Joyce to an AMERICAN reporter. "I suppose if he were older and able to take care of himself I wouldn't mind so much. He never stayed from home over night before."

Here is young White's description:

Slightly over four feet in height, weight eighty-five pounds, blue eyes, light brown hair with a mark of gray hair behind the left ear, blue cap, blue serge knickerbocker suit.

I. W. W. THREAT TO DYNAMITE BARBER SHOPS

Astounding threats against A. F. of L. barbers, attributed to I. W. W. pickets, led the A. F. of L. today to appeal to Superintendent of Police Pierce and to Mayor Fitzgerald for protection.

The A. F. of L. leaders say I. W. W. men have threatened to kill union barbers who remained at work; to brand "I. W. W." on their foreheads with razors; to blow up the shops with dynamite; and to "plant tombstones over their graves in forty-eight hours."

Three hundred and fifty A. F. of L. barbers, it is alleged, have been driven out of union shops by these threats and are afraid to return to work.

After a conference with Superintendent Pierce today, Henry Abrahams, secretary of the Boston Central Labor Union, sent the following letter to Mayor Fitzgerald:

"The I. W. W. are terrorizing the union barber shops in this city. Employes are being threatened with bodily harm. The public fears to enter the shops. What is desired is protection for the public. I hope you will take such action as will insure the safety of employers and the public."

Captain James Sullivan of the Court Square station has his men investigating alleged threats made by an I. W. W. barber at an Atlantic Avenue shop, and a warrant is sought for the man.

This barber is said to be a leader in the I. W. W. organization and a man well known in Chicago and New York as an I. W. W. organizer

"ALCO SYSTEM" SUITS

Hundreds of New Handsome Models

WORTH $18.00 TO $25 FOR

$11

Those who remember our great sale of the Alco System Clothes a year ago will be the first on hand, for it was one of the most successful sales we ever held. At that time, to thoroughly introduce their fine clothing to Boston, Arnold Loucheim Company, one of the biggest clothing manufacturers in the country, made us an extraordinary concession. In fact, that sale was such a success that this season we were successful in persuading them to close out to us their surplus stock, although hundreds of other big concerns in other cities tried hard to get it.

At the Prices Quoted These Suits Are Easily the Biggest Bargains of the Year

You Have Only to Spend $11 to Be Dressed in the Best Taste

Our Reason for Pushing "Alco System" Clothes

Is because, during the past twelve months they have fully met every expectation—in most instances have proven even better than we hoped. The men who bought them came back later for more Alco Suits and became permanent customers.

Join the "Alco" Crowd During This Sale—Become One of the Best Dressed Men in Boston—and Save $7.00 to $14.00

In This Sale!!!

All the newest fabrics in worsteds, cheviots, cassimeres, tweeds, flannels, novelties, mixtures and plenty of navy serges. Coats are full lined and half lined with silk or with alpaca—take your choice. Two and three-button models in every new style.

FRIDAY Will Be a Wonderful Day in the Rothenberg Sale

ALL CAN PROFIT
We Pay Freight
To Any New England Point on Purchases of 5.00 or over

We've picked at random single items from the great piles of merchandise values and put them on this page in as graphical a manner as we know how

We've done this to compel your attention—to make you realize the wonderful opportunities that are knocking at your door—the crowds alone are worth coming miles to see. This story will be read by nearly a million people. The hundreds of unadvertised values are as wonderful as those we tell of here.

Nothing like this sale has ever been known before—nothing like it will ever occur again—Mr. Siegel did an unprecedented thing when he bought one of the largest popular department stores in New York City—moved the entire stock over night (as one might say). It is a sale almost beyond comprehension so great is it in magnitude.

The Rothenberg Store
You can partly judge from this how gigantic was the purchase that Mr. Siegel made and it will help you to recognize that his action has no parallel in merchandising.

BLAME 'FLOPS' FOR KILLING OF HEALTH BILL

By one of the most disgraceful "flops" ever seen in a Massachusetts legislature, enough Democrats switched their votes or absented themselves yesterday to effect the killing of the bill calling for a reorganization of the State Board of Health.

The State Board of Health conducted one of the most pernicious lobbies of the session. It used every means known to influence Representatives.

Several Representatives wanted to vote for the bill. They received telephone call after telephone call from hostile interests. They were threatened, cajoled and promised. As a result they voted against the bill.

Representative George P. Webster of Boxford was so astounded at the activity of the Board of Health lobby he charged it openly on the floor of the House with attempting to influence his vote.

Representative McManus of Boston said the Health Board lobby was the "most gigantic" he had seen in his experience as a Representative.

Representative McGrath of Boston said the attempt of the Board of Health lobby to change the vote of the Legislature "was disgraceful."

Knew It Had a Fight.

But their charges fell on deaf ears. The whip of the machine had cracked, and reactionary Republicans and fawning Democrats "flopped" into line and voted against the bill.

Though the State Board of Health won yesterday, it knew it had been in a fight. It knew it had escaped by only the narrowest margins it has ever faced. And it knows it is not safe yet. The AMERICAN conducted its campaign against the board but two short weeks. In that time it forced the Health Board to one of the most serious legislative contests which ever challenged the entrenched power.

It took four roll calls before the board saved itself from reorganization.

Against the ruthless controlled by the Health Board, against the thousands of State employes it coerced, the AMERICAN stood almost alone.

Even then it was only by underhanded methods used by old school politicians that the Board of Health was able to save its official neck.

Three Representatives who voted for the bill Tuesday "flopped" yesterday. Ten unfaithful Democrats consistently voted against the bill. Thirteen other Democrats and Republicans did the most effective work against the bill by absenting themselves yesterday.

So desperate was the fear of the board it would be reorganized it called to its assistance Senators Johnson of Lynn and McLean of Fall River to lobby for it

Bill Is Killed.

Those who fought yesterday for the bill were Representatives McManus, Webster, Lewis R. Sullivan and Benjamin F. Sullivan of Boston, Representative Brennan of Charlestown and Representative Edward E. McGrath of Boston. Many other Representatives would have spoken, but Speaker Grafton Cushing, the Republican leader, choked off debate on the motion to reconsider.

The motion for reconsideration was made by Representative Dr. Enos H. Bigelow of Framingham. His motion prevailed on a piling vote, 82 to 69. A roll call was demanded. On the roll call reconsideration again prevailed, 104 to 101.

Without further debate the House then proceeded to a roll call on the recurring question of passing the bill to be engrossed. The question was lost and the bill killed by a vote of 109 to 103.

Those Who "Flopped."

Here are the names of those who voted for the bill to reorganize the State Board of Health, Tuesday, and voted against it yesterday:

Morton Henry Burdick, Democrat, of Adams.

William S. Kinney of Boston, Republican.

John Mitchell of Springfield, Democrat.

Edward M. Hall of Pittsfield voted once in favor of the bill, but yesterday he voted against it.

Here are the Democrats who opposed the bill since it came before the House:

Edward C. Bodfish of Wareham.

Daniel J. Buckley of Springfield.

John J. Conway of Ward 23, Boston.

Arthur J. Coughlen of Maynard.

Charles A. Dean of Wakefield.

John Eanis of Williamstown.

John T. Flanagan of Worcester.

Frederic J. Grady of Dedham.

John Mitchell of Springfield.

John C. Sanborn of Lawrence.

Arthur J. Coughlan of Maynard.

The Thirteen Who Stayed Away.

Here are the Democrats and Republicans who stayed away from the House of Representatives.

They voted Yes for the bill Tuesday. Had these thirteen men been doing their duty yesterday the bill would have passed.

Charley Horse? Not at All! Just the Modern Turkey Leg!

"What is this here, now, Turkey Leg?" I asked a doctor friend.
"Is it a Charley Horse, or just a most peculiar bend?
How does this strange and marvelous, brand new affliction show?
Just tell me, kind sir, will you not," I said. "I ask to know."

"It's sartoritis," he replied. "A muscle in the thigh Gets overworked, and trouble comes." I heaved a lengthy sigh.
"I've read all that before," I said. "But what I'm asking now
Is where, whichever, whence, wherefore, this here leg made its bow."

Just then swift music smote our ears. He stopped me with a grin.
"A dance is on right here," he said. "Come on, let's just drop in.
We'll watch the giddy dancers while I tell you more in full
What causes this new ailment. It's a sort of muscle pull."

Two Bunnies Hugged, right square beneath the glaring chandelier.
The Doctor started to explain. A Gaby Glided near.
A Turkey Trotter trotted past, her skirt slit to the knee.
"I see what Turkey Leg means now," I cried. "Don't talk, I SEE."

MORE ENDEARING LOVE NOTES FROM GENERAL BAKER FILED IN $200,000 SUIT OF WOMAN

Mrs. Magnolia V. A. H. Harris of Washington, who has sued the estate of Henry M. Baker, former Congressman from New Hampshire, for $200,000 on the ground that she was engaged to marry him, and that he had promised to change his will, bases her case on other letters from Baker besides those filed with her petition in the Concord, N. H., court, it was learned today.

The letters filed were full of endearing and affectionate terms, and Baker's administrators say they do not doubt he wrote them. But there are other letters, which may be made public at the time of the trial, showing other sides of the friendship between the prominent attorney of seventy-two, and the pension bureau clerk of forty.

Mrs. Harris will claim that Baker, who was executor of the estate of Mary Baker G. Eddy, had planned to change his will in her favor, giving her his Bow, N. H., home, and that when he became ill, he delayed changing it, because he expected to recover. She will assert that he died suddenly, in the night and alone, and so had no chance to make the change planned.

The full statement sworn to by Mrs. Harris in bringing her suit, was made public today. It reads in part as follows:

Claims of Mrs. Hargis.

"Magnolia V. A. H. Harris says that in February, 1912, at Washington, she was unmarried, and skilled and experienced in business, of superior education and accomplishments, and of good character, reputation and social position, well qualified to be the secretary, associate, adviser, agent and companion of a man of business, of literary pursuits, or engaged in public affairs; and being of sound health, a good nurse and housekeeper, thirty-nine years of age, and in every respect well qualified to marry the said Henry M. Baker.

"She says Baker was seventy-one years of age, of somewhat infirm health, never married, and with no family establishment in Washington, and being in great need of a secretary, associate, adviser and agent, and of a nurse, housekeeper and companion, whether he should remain single or should marry.

"She says she did at the special instance and request of Baker, promise him to forthwith, when requested, enter his service and also to marry him as soon as it could be conveniently arranged.

"He promised to assist the plaintiff in acquiring some further skill in stenography and typewriting, to qualify herself as secretary and assistant and in other of said capacities before and until marriage.

"Baker promised as a further consideration that considering his age, health and the uncertainty of life, and the helpless condition in which the plaintiff would be left if the marriage should not be consummated, to provide without delay and before marriage, by settlement, delivery of property, by will or in some sufficient way, for her maintenance and support, suitably as his affianced wife, his wife, or widow, if she survived him, according to his wealth, standing and position in life.

Tells of Ring Given.

"Mrs. Harris says she entered the service of Baker as promised, and has faithfully kept and discharged all her promises and obligations, and was always ready and willing to marry him as soon as he was ready, and that they had planned to be married in the Summer of 1912, when, on the thirtieth of May of that year, he unexpectedly died with no opportunity to take leave of his estate.

"She believes that he would have left to her a large part of his estate, and there been opportunity, and refers to copies of his letters, as proof, and says the 'very old will,' mentioned in his letter dated March 22, 1912, under the being administered, is directly contrary provisions of which his estate is now to his real wishes.

24 COLLEGES OF MEDICINE SHUT BY CARNEGIE AID

NEW YORK, June 5.—In its effort to standardize the medical colleges of the country, the Carnegie Foundation has forced twenty-four of them to the wall.

Secretary Furst, of the Foundation, told the AMERICAN today that the Carnegie managers had embarked upon their campaign in 1903 with the distinct aim of eliminating all medical schools that in their opinion were in the way.

The method employed by the foundation, Mr. Furst said, was to create a sentiment against the weak and inferior colleges by sending broad-cast into their regions scathing reports dealing with them. In some instances the deficiency of the teaching staffs was condemned, in others lack of laboratory or hospital advantage, poor equipment of buildings and scarcity of income.

Before the foundation started in, the American Medical Association in 1905 ranted 160 medical colleges, with 26,147 students a year and 5,600 graduates. The medical association pruned the list by losing some twenty-five colleges out. The foundation reinforced the work of elimination by cutting down the list still today there are 117 colleges.

The Carnegie Foundation considers that thirty medical colleges with an average total graduation of 3000 a year, are sufficient to supply the country's demands for doctors.

In no instance, according to Dr. Henry S. Pritchett, president of the foundation, is the secretarianism of a college enter into the decision as to its utility.

Hold Liner for Morgan Farewell

France Waits 15 Minutes While J. P. Says Good-by to Anne.

NEW YORK, June 5.—Miss Anne Morgan, daughter of the late J. Pierpont Morgan, sailed today for Europe on the liner France, the same ship on which her father's dead body was brought home. Just before leaving Miss Morgan was besieged by reporters and gave out an interview in which she put the stamp of her approval on the turkey trot, which has been banned here and abroad as immoral.

"If people want to dance it let them go ahead," said Miss Morgan. I don't see any harm in it. Everybody seems to be doing it."

"Did you ever dance it?" asked a reporter.

"Certainly not," replied Miss Morgan with emphasis.

The sailing of the ship was delayed fifteen minutes until J. P. Morgan, Jr., could say good-bye to his sister.

Molineux Writes Play on "Justice"

NEW YORK, June 5.—Roland B. Molineux, who was the principal in one of the most famous murder trials in New York, has written a play which David Belasco will produce next Fall. While no details were made public at Mr. Belasco's office yesterday, it was learned that it deals with reparation to those who have been unjustly sent to prison.

Riot Insurance Is Sought by Belfast

LONDON, June 5.—The discovery of several cases of rifles by the customs officials at Belfast has started a lively insurance business in London to cover damage to property in Belfast by riots. The rates average 5 shillings per cent. at the new home of the couple, No. 26 for a year for private houses. The rates are higher for a commercial building.

MAYOR SEEKS NEW COOK; HIS A JUNE BRIDE

Catherine Coffee, Mayor Fitzgerald's erstwhile cook and chef-general, who has left him to be married to John Kelley, of Dorchester, is willing to help out whatever new incumbent may endeavor—endeavor, mark you—to fill her place.

She admits that it isn't hard to please the Mayor. On the contrary, he is the "grandest man when it comes to feeding. He never makes any mile-wide demands on his cook, but is always satisfied if the corned beef is well done, the cabbage sour, and the potatoes mealy."

But the trouble comes when some foreign potentate drifts in to take pot luck with His Honor. Then it is that the Mayor, in an off-hand way, says to the cook: "You must come up to my digs for cliffin, old man!"

And with Miss Coffee in the kitchen, he always knew that everything from the hors-d'oeuvres to the demi-tasse would be on the spot to go to the right spot. There is a weighty problem confronting the new incumbent. How to cook corned beef and cabbage, and at the same time be up in the art of serving peelet rotie avec petits-pois et pommes de terre a la Pailleres is some education. But Miss Coffee knew how to do it.

There is one thing, too, that the cook must be able to make to the Mayor's taste, three times a day, seven days a week (in season). That is strawberry shortcake. If an applicant for the place doesn't know this, says Miss Coffee, she may as well go back to the employment agency.

Miss Coffee was married to Mr. Kelley, at St. Mark's Catholic Church in Dorchester, by the Rev. Father Daly, the pastor. Among those present were Mayor Fitzgerald and the Misses Rose and Agnes Fitzgerald. A reception followed at the new home of the couple, No. 26 Leyland street, after which they left on an extended honeymoon.

WITHIN THE LAW

By Marvin Dana, from the Play of Bernard Veiller

PART I.

Copyright, 1913, by the H. K. Fly Company. The play "Within the Law" is copyrighted by Mr. Veiller and this novelization of it is published by his permission. The American Play Company is the sole proprietor of the exclusive rights of the representation and performance of "Within the Law" in all languages.

THERE came a long pause, Burke's face was avid with desire for knowledge, with the keen expectancy of the hunter on the trail, which was characteristic of him in his professional work. The District Attorney himself was less vitally eager, but his curiosity, as well as his wish to escape from an embarrassing situation showed openly on his alert countenance. The heavy features of the father were twisting a little in nervous spasms, for to him this hour was all anguish, since his only son was in such horrible plight. Dick alone seemed almost tranquil, though the outward calm was belied by the flickering of his eyelids and the occasional involuntary movement of the lips. Finally he spoke, in a cold, weary voice.

"I shot Griggs," he said.

Demarest realized subtly that his plea had failed, but he made an effort to resist the impression, to take the admission at its face value.

"Why?" he demanded.

Dick's answer came in the like unmeaning tones, and as wearily.

"Because I thought he was a burglar."

The District Attorney was beginning to feel his professional pride aroused against this young man who so flagrantly repelled his attempts to learn the truth concerning the crime that had been committed. He resorted to familiar artifices for entangling one questioned.

"Oh, I see!" he said, in a tone of conviction. "Now, let's go back a little. Burke says you told him last night that you had persuaded your wife to come over to the house, and join you there. Is that right?"

"Yes." The monosyllable was uttered indifferently.

"And, while the two of you were talking," Demarest continued in a matter-of-fact manner, He did not conclude the sentence, but asked instead: "Now, tell me, Dick, just what did happen, won't you?"

DICK MAKES SLIP

There was no reply; and, after a little interval, the lawyer resumed his questioning.

"Did this burglar come into the room?"

Dick nodded an assent.

"And he attacked you?"

There came another nod of affirmation.

"And there was a struggle?"

"Yes," Dick said, and now there was resolution in his answer.

"And you shot him?" Demarest asked, smoothly.

"Yes," the young man said again.

"Then," the lawyer countered on the instant, "where did you get the revolver?"

Dick started to answer without thought:

"Why, I grabbed it——" Then, the significance of this crashed on his consciousness, and he checked the words trembling on his lips. His eyes, which had been downcast, lifted and glared on the questioner. "So," he said with swift hostility in his voice, "so, you're trying to trap me, too!" He shrugged his shoulders in a way he had learned abroad. "You! And you talk of friendship. I want none of such friendship."

Demarest, greatly disconcerted, was skilled, nevertheless, in dissembling, and he hid his chagrin perfectly. There was only reproach in his voice as he answered stontly:

"I am your friend, Dick."

But Burke would be no longer restrained. He had listened with increasing impatience to the diplomatic efforts of the District Attorney, which had ended in total rout. Now, he insisted on employing his own more drastic, and, as he believed, more efficacious, methods. He stood up, and spoke in his most threatening manner.

"You don't want to take us for fools, young man," he said, and his big tones rumbled harshly through the room. "If you shot Griggs in mistake for a burglar, why did you try to hide the fact? Why did you pretend to me that you and your wife were alone in the room—when you had that there with you, eh? Why didn't you call for help? Why didn't you call for the police, as any honest man would naturally under such circumstances?"

The arraignment was severely logical. Dick showed his appreciation of the justice of it in the whitening of his face, nor did he try to answer the charges thus hurled at him.

The father, too, appreciated the gravity of the situation. His face was working, as if toward tears.

"We're trying to save you," he pleaded, tremulously.

Burke persisted in his vehement system of attack. Now, he again brought out the weapon that had done Eddie Griggs to death.

"Where'd you get this gun?" he shouted.

Dick held his tranquil pose.

"I won't talk any more," he answered, simply. "I must see my wife first." His voice became more aggressive. "I want to know what you're done to her."

Burke seized on this opening.

"Did she kill Griggs?" he questioned, roughly.

For once, Dick was startled out of his calm.

"No, no!" he cried, desperately.

Burke followed up his advantage.

"Then who did?" he demanded, sharply. "Who did?"

Now, however, the young man had regained his self-control. He answered very quietly, but with an air of finality.

"I won't say any more until I've talked with a lawyer whom I can trust." He shot a vindictive glance toward Demarest. The latter interpreted with a piteous eagerness.

"Dick, if you know who killed this man, you must speak to protect yourself."

Burke's voice came viciously.

"The gun was found on you. Don't forget that."

"You don't seem to realise the position you're in," the father isolated, despairingly. "Think of me, Dick, my boy. If you won't speak for your own sake, do it for mine."

The face of the young man softened as he met his father's beseeching eyes.

"I'm sorry, Dad," he said, very gently. "But I—well, I can't!"

Again, Burke interposed. His busy brain was working out a new scheme for solving this irritating problem.

"I'm going to give him a little more time to think things over," he said, curtly. He went back to his chair. "Perhaps he'll get to understand the importance of what we've been saying pretty soon." He scowled at Dick. "Now, young man," he went on briskly, "you want to do a lot of quick thinking, and a lot of honest thinking, and, when you're ready to tell the truth, let me know."

"DAD, I'M SORRY"

He pressed the button on his desk, and, as the doorman appeared, addressed that functionary.

"Dan, have one of the men take him back. You wait outside."

Dick, however, did not move. His voice came with a note of determination.

"I want to know about my wife. Where is she?"

Burke disregarded the question as completely as if it had not been uttered. He went on speaking to the doorman with a suggestion in his words that was effective.

"He's not to speak to any one, you understand." Then he condescended to give his attention to the prisoner. "You'll know all about your wife, young man, when you make up your mind to tell us the truth."

Dick gave no heed to the inspector's statement. His eyes were fixed on his father, and there was a great tenderness in their depths. And he spoke very softly:

"Dad, I'm sorry!"

The father's gaze met the son's, and the eyes of the two locked. There was no other word spoken. Dick turned, and followed his custodian out of the office in silence. Even after the shutting of the door behind the prisoner, the pause endured for some moments.

Then, at last, Burke spoke to the magnate.

"You see, Mr. Glider, what we're up against. I can't let him go—yet!"

The father strode across the room in a sudden access of rage.

"He's thinking of that woman," he cried out, in a loud voice. "He's trying to shield her."

To Be Continued To-morrow.

WOOD MAY FACE CHICAGO IN THIRD GAME TODAY

"Smoky" Joe Wood will probably be selected to oppose J. Callahan's white-hosed ball tossers from Chicago today in an effort to win another game for the Red Sox. Wood was knocked out of the box by the New York Yankees Monday, while he was defeated by the Senators Memorial Day, but, nevertheless, believes he is capable of holding the White Sox in check.

Stahl, however, may decide to use "Dutch" Leonard on the firing line. This young man performed like a real champion against the lowly Yanks Monday until late in the game, when he went to pieces, and it was necessary to have Bedient perform a rescue act.

The Red Sox were determined to win today's game. They declare that they will breeze in winners even if "Big" Ed Walsh goes into the box for the visitors.

Walsh experienced no success against the champions last year. In fact, Edward has been amusing himself defeating Boston baseball clubs, and some others that don't come from Boston, for several years past.

The spitball king, however, has been in poor health this year. He was ill when Stahl's men were in Chicago on their recent Western trip, and so did not have an opportunity to display his wares in the box.

Benz, the butcher boy of a few years ago, may be selected to pitch for the visitors today and if he goes to the firing line the locals will have their work cut out for them, as he has been traveling at a merry pace this season.

Eddie Cicotte and Harry Lord, two former Red Sox players, now sporting Chicago uniforms, were the chief factors in preventing the Red Sox from keeping up their winning streak yesterday. Cicotte was in the box for the visitors, and allowed but six scattered hits while Lord was responsible for causing the downfall of "Buck" O'Brien, when he hammered out a triple in the first inning with one man on.

B. C. Nine Plays Norwich Today

Boston College will meet Norwich University at Locust street this afternoon. The Norwich team arrived last night.

It will be the first game that Boston College has played for almost two weeks, the lapse being due to cancelation of games after the opening of the season. "Larry" Conley, the B. C. left fielder, is still out with a severe ankle injury received in the Seton Hall game. Gillespie will probably be substituted for him. Hallinan and Nelson will be the battery for Boston College today.

Coulon Agrees to Battle Williams

BALTIMORE, June 5.—"Johnny" Coulon, bantamweight champion pugilist, has telegraphed an acceptance of the offer made by "Sammy" Harris, manager of "Kid" Williams of Baltimore, for a twenty-round championship bout between Coulon and Williams. The bout probably will take place in this city July 4. The terms agreed upon are said to be a guarantee to Coulon of $5,000 and 40 per cent. of the receipts.

Mrs. Tyler Morse Wins at Dog Show

Boston friends of Mrs. Tyler Morse, Beverly society leader and wife of the diplomat and hunter of African jungles, congratulated her today on her victory at the dog show of the Ladies' Kennel Association of America in New York.

In the champions of champions class Mrs. Morse swept the board with her old English sheep dogs. Brentwood Hero was entitled to the distinction of champion.

Cornell Crews Have Hard Workouts

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 5.—Coach Courtney sent his three Cornell crews up the river for their first row since their arrival. Coach Hiram B. Conibear and his twelve oarsmen of the Washington University ran along on the railroad tracks for a quarter of a mile watching the Ithacans at work.

Coach Rice sent his Columbia varsity crew over the course. The freshmen and four-oared crews were given a practice row of about four miles.

Schoolboy Crews in Finals Today

The finals in the Boston Interscholastic Rowing Association regatta for first and second crews will be rowed on the Charles River course this afternoon, under the supervision of the B. A. A., starting at 3:30 o'clock.

Boston English High, Brookline High, Ridge Technical and Cambridge Latin first crews qualified in the preliminaries Tuesday, as did also the Boston Latin, Brookline High, Ridge Technical and Cambridge Latin second crews.

The crews held workouts yesterday afternoon. Brookline and Ridge Technical are picked as the probable contenders for the first crew championship, for Columbus Day, and Saturday.

The school eleven is also desirous of securing the services of a coach for the eleven. Manager Sullivan is eager to fill dates for Columbus Day, and Saturday.

Ledoux Matched to Meet Eddie Campi

NEW YORK, June 5.—Charley Ledoux, the French bantam champion, has been matched to fight a twenty-round bout with Eddie Campi, the Pacific Coast whirlwind, on June 24 at Vernon, Cal.

Kramer is Winner.

NEWARK, N. J., June 5.—Frank L. Kramer won the half-mile National professional championship race at the Newark Velodrome, and Fred Hill of Waltham, Mass., finished second, but was disqualified for running Clarke off the track.

M'LOUGHLIN TO OPEN AGAINST AUSTRALIANS

NEW YORK, June 5.—Maurice E. McLoughlin, the Californian, will open hostilities in the first match of the preliminary round against Australia tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Horace Rice will be pitted against the Westerner. Captains Dount and Hackett got together yesterday at the West Side Tennis Club and made the pairings. Stanley N. Doust will play against R. Norris Williams of Philadelphia.

On Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock Captain Dount and A. Booth Jones will play in the doubles against Captain Harold H. Hackett and McLoughlin. Jones is not entirely well yet, and so Dount has named him with the provision that he may substitute some one else for him any time prior to the match.

The final matches of the tie will be played on Monday at 2 o'clock. McLoughlin and Doust will take the court in the opener and Rice and Williams will wage war in the nightcap. Robert D. Wrenn, chairman of the International committee, will referee all the matches.

Yesterday was the first time that the full complement of Australian and American players worked on the championship courts. After Jones and Doust finished play against Rice and Haggett, the left-hander paired up with his captain on one of the side courts and outplayed Pell and F. C. Inman in three sets. Rice worked in singles against Inman, while Doust tried out some strokes with Pell.

McLoughlin practiced with Williams in singles. The Philadelphian has improved considerably and kept the Hyattsville on the go. Haggett, the professional, coached Williams through a couple of sets and Hackett with McLoughlin closed the day's work with a couple of sets in doubles against Haggett and Little.

COACH WRAY IS PLEASED WITH WORK OF MEN

RED TOP, Ct., June 4.—The Harvard crews put in a fairly hard day yesterday, all the crews taking long paddles in the afternoon, the freshman eight being sent over the upper end of the course for two miles. No attempt was made for time, as the first half of the distance was made at the low stroke of 28, but was raised to 34 for the latter part.

Coach Wray watched the crew from the launch and was well pleased at the work, no time being given out. There was a slight change in this crew before it was sent out in the morning, Morgan going to No. 4 and Talcott of the four-oar crew taking his place at No. 2. In this order they were sent over the course last night.

The varsity eight and fours also took advantage of the excellent conditions and took long paddles respectively. There is not much excitement at the quarters so the freshmen crew for amusement threw their manager over in the river three times yesterday. Lara Anderson's houseboat, "Roorback," with a party aboard, watched the crews at work during the evening.

"Pete" Higginson, captain of the 1900 crew, was a visitor at the quarters and in company with H. F. Herrick, in the latter's launch, "Waif," followed the crews on the river. The morning workouts are very light, the crews spending less than an hour on the river, due partly to college examinations, which will be finished next week.

To Men Who Missed, Two Weeks Ago, Our Sale of Summer Suits at $17.50 We Offer Tomorrow and Saturday

Filene's

The Same Kinds of Suits—From Same Makers—At Same Price

Two weeks ago these Specialty Shops for Men's Clothes offered at $17.50 a lot of $22.50 to $45 Summer Suits. The result was a sale that called for additional suits the morning of the second day—a sale that is still discussed in wonderment not only in Boston but in New York—a sale that amounted virtually to a "clean-up." This week-end (Friday and Saturday) we again employ THE OVAL to offer, FROM THE MAKERS OF THE SUITS IN THE LAST SALE,

515 New Summer Suits for Men, Actual Filene Values $22.50 to $40, at . . $17.50

THIS TIME,

MR. MAN, THE OVAL SAYS:

97 Men's Suits worth $22.50
165 Men's Suits worth $25
57 Men's Suits worth $28
97 Men's Suits worth $30
40 Men's Suits worth $32
28 Men's Suits worth $35
31 Men's Suits worth $40

$17.50

ON SALE TOMORROW AND SATURDAY

First off, let us tell you how NEW these suits are. We cannot make it plainer than to say they would have been here for the sale of a fortnight ago HAD THE MAKERS BEEN ABLE TO GET THEM TO US IN TIME.

But these makers—absolutely the two top-notchers in the made-ready clothes trade, are not of the hurrying kind. Both insist on making their product as near perfect as possible. Rest assured we preferred to wait rather than accept hurried work.

So here they are—ready for the MANY MEN WHO WERE DISAPPOINTED because they couldn't find just what they wanted in the last sale. Ready for several hundred other men who were SORRY they hadn't attended after they heard what was doing.

TWO AND THREE-PIECE SUMMER SUITS, in fancy cheviots, unfinished worsteds, wool crash, homespuns, tweeds, neat worsteds in stripes, checks, mixtures and overplaids. And some fancy blue patterns. SIZES, 33 to 54 chest, including stout, regular and slim models.

As we said of the suits sold two weeks ago, THESE ARE THE BEST MADE-READY SUITS WE EVER SAW at their ORIGINAL prices — the prices we quote as their values. NOW THE OVAL SAYS, AGAIN, $17.50. Why say more?

WINNING THE RACE FOR BEAUTY

TO HAVE ATTRACTIVE EYES — Bright, sparkling, rich colored, strong eyes, free from redness, listlessness and influenza—the result from the use of this simple, economical home-made tonic, which is used by many actresses to relieve and beautify their eyes. Mix 1 ounce of cyptrus in a pint of water, drop one or two drops in each eye whenever they are weak, watery, tired, red or inflamed.

TO MAKE HAIR GROW—Use this fine quinzoin tonic. It will remove the dandruff, stop your hair from falling and promote a healthy growth of brilliant, easily managed hair. Dissolve 1 ounce quinzoin in ½ pint alcohol, adding same amount of cold water. This will destroy dandruff germs and stimulate the scalp to throw off impurities, producing fine, abundant hair.

CURING PIMPLES AND SALLOWNESS —They are due to bad blood which can be purified and toned by taking before each meal a tablespoonful of a cheap remedy which can be made at home by mixing 1 ounce kardene, ½ pint alcohol, ½ teacup sugar, 1¼ pints boiling water. Good for yellow blotches, skin eruptions and sallowness. Gives healthy color to the skin.

WRINKLE REMOVER—A formula which has been found absolute in its action is easily and cheaply made at home by mixing 1 ounce of almonds with ¼ pint cold water and adding 2 teaspoonfuls glycerine. Stir and let stand for one day. To remove or prevent wrinkles apply this vegetable cream jelly thickly and leave over night, then wash off and with more of the cream massage thoroughly. Nothing equals almonds jelly-cream to remove wrinkles and keep them away. It contains no fatty substances which might promote growth of hair. You will also notice by its use not only your wrinkles disappearing, but the large pores of the entire face getting much smaller and the skin very soft and velvety.—Advertisement

By RILEY.

JACK TRIEOR of Dorchester has written a letter to this column, of which the following is a part:

Sporting Editor, AMERICAN:—

I read with interest an article in your paper on prize fighting. I greatly admire your stand, as I admire any one who is willing to defend his belief. Now, you give quite a long list of the deaths caused by the brutal prize ring. I do not attempt to dispute them. I will agree with you in order to save useless argument. Here is what I am coming to. The list you give covers the last fifteen years or so, now will you, in the interest of clean sport, kindly publish a similarly complete list of the deaths in football during the last fifteen years or so.

I consider football the most inhuman and the most dangerous to human life of all so-called sports. Of course, you may not agree with me, but, if not, I will only ask you to give a list of the most serious injuries and the deaths of a single season, as I do not suppose you have been so zealous in keeping these records, for dollars here indulge in that pastime.

JACK TRIEOR.

P. S.—Of course, I will not see this published, as you probably have not room in your paper for such a long list as would cover the last fifteen years.

* * *

WE do not happen to have in hand a complete list of the deaths in football during the last fifteen years. If we had we would gladly publish them. We have no doubt that they would take a lot of space. Very much more than that required for victims of the prize ring. It is possible that the list of a single year —if the right year were selected—would equal in length that of fifteen years of pugilism.

From time to time in the past—in fact, nearly every Fall—the Boston AMERICAN has published such a list covering the casualties of the current year, and it will likely do the same in the Fall of 1913. The list will doubtless be long enough to be worth considerable reflection, notwithstanding recent changes in the rules have reduced football casualties.

This replies to the first part of Mr. Trieor's request.

* * *

THERE is no doubt whatever that football is a dangerous game and that some of the players suffer death and many others suffer very painful and sometimes crippling injuries.

It makes one shudder to stand on the sidelines and see the man with the ball tackled in a big college game. His opponents spare nothing. They leap upon the runner with full weight and strength and butt him to the ground, regardless. Three or four tacklers to one are the usual odds. So the runner almost invariably goes down.

Sometimes his neck is broken. Sometimes other bones, not so important in nature's scheme, are smashed. Sometimes his features are mussed up. Sometimes all he suffers is summary loss of wind. But, almost always, he suffers something.

There are many more games of football than there are boxing exhibitions in the course of a year, and many more youths play the game than indulge in boxing. This accounts, partly, for the larger number of casualties. But, be that as it may, we agree with Mr. Trieor that football is SOME dangerous game.

All of which opinion has been frequently expressed in this column. So there was no reason for Mr. Trieor to believe that his remarks on the subject would not be courteously received by this column.

This, however, is not the football season. When that time comes again, if it is attended with catastrophe, Mr. Trieor and those others who have written along the same lines as he, will find plenty of comment about it in this column.

* * *

JOSH DEVORE and Leon Ames went to Cincinnati and won a 1 to 0 ball game for the Reds. Devore scored the "one" and Ames was responsible for the "naught." Up to this writing, therefore, Cincinnati has no tangible cause of complaint against the trade by which Joe Tinker acquired the pair.

* * *

UNABLE to make a satisfactory showing themselves, those Reds are certainly a great supply house for the teams that CAN make good.

Garry Herrmann can hardly look with composure upon the possibility of the Phillies winning the pennant, for he supplied them with part of the material to do it with, receiving, in exchange, part of the material which has his own team now lodged in last place.

Joe Tinker can hardly look with pleasure upon the fact that Johnny Evers' and Chesbro Murphy's Cubs are higher up than he is.

So Garry and Joe will probably survive the shock if Pitcher Fromme and Third Baseman Ed Grant suddenly become world beaters and prove material assistance to the Giants in trouncing both Phillies and Cubs.

* * *

IT seems likely that the Grant deal was part of the rest of the Giants-Reds transaction. Because Tinker got nothing but money—$3,500 of it—for Grant—which is of no benefit to the fans—he doubtless held up the announcement that the ex-Harvard man was going to New York until Cincinnati "fans" had a chance to see Devore and Ames make good. Immediately after they "came through" he was able to make the sale known without danger of disturbance. Cincinnati "fans" are a particular lot of persons. And they carry hammers all the year 'round.

NEW HAVEN, June 5.—Yale defeated Holy Cross here for the third time this season in a closely contested 10-inning game, 6 to 5. The winning run came on a wild throw by Catcher O'Dwyer.

CHICAGO, June 5.—The recent defeats of the Boston Nationals have caused Manager Stallings to declare that his club is not receiving a fair deal from the National League umpires. Stallings believes that the athletes are favoring the leading teams with the hope of being selected to umpire in the world series. In discussing the matter he said:

The Pilgrims are always getting the worst of the umpiring.

Possibly it is natural for an umpire to give a close decision against the team that is low in the race, just because he thinks that it cannot make any difference with that team, and may make all the difference in the world to the team that is higher in the standing.

Then, again, I am inclined to believe that the umpires of the league are a little inclined to have their eyes planted on a job in one of the big post-season series, and for that reason incline a little toward the stronger teams, on a chance that they will be selected to umpire in the big series, where the umpire's fees are extremely large and worth while.

* * *

The Bostons meet the Cubs again today and hope to win. "Hub" Perdue will probably pitch for the visitors, while Lavender or Smith may do mound duty for Evers' team.

"Never Again," Says John Paul Jones

ITHACA, N. Y., June 5.—"Never again," declared John Paul Jones, Cornell's wonderful athlete, when asked for a definite statement as to whether or not he would run again.

Jones, in confirming a published report to this effect, in which Coach Jack Moakley was given as the authority, said he would not join an athletic club, and denied that he would take part in any match races. This, it would appear, disposes of the report that he will run Kiviat.

Jones made his statement to set at rest conflicting reports as to his future course. He graduates from the College of Mechanical Engineering in two weeks, and intends to begin practicing his profession. While he will always keep up his exercise he will do no more racing, he says.

Worcester High Boys Prepare for Meet

WORCESTER, June 5.—Members of the Worcester Boys' Trade School track team are in the pink of condition, ready to compete in the annual dual meet with Leister Academy at the Oval Saturday. Coach Price of the Trade School, who has been instructing his charges carefully, feels confident that his boys will secure victory.

Bike Stars to Try for New Records

The greatest speed race on two-wheeled machines ever held in this section of the country is on the card for next Saturday night at the Revere bicycle track. The new oval of eight laps to the mile was designed for fast competition. Nat Butler, the manager of the oval, being anxious to learn just what the track is capable of holding, has arranged a special event.

Motorcycles of high power, and designed for speeding will be used, and three of the nerviest men in the game will operate the engines. They are Jimmy Hunter, famed as one of the most daring operators in the world; Charlie Turville of Revere and Charles Stein of Newark. There will be no pace followers in the five-mile event.

Turville, Hunter and Stein will draw for positions and get away to a flying start. It should be one continuous battle from gun to gun, as all three are anxious to get the track record as well as the cash which is offered the winner. Butler will give a special bonus to the winner if he reels off one mile under 1m., and a further bonus for three miles in 3m.

HOT LINERS

Ty Cobb of the Tigers got two hits out of four times up yesterday and again leads Joe Jackson in the race for batting honors in the American League.

* * *

Manager Jimmy Callahan of the White Sox has exuded the opinion in joyous tones, that the acquisition of Chase insures the pennane for the White Sox. Incidentally it might be mentioned that the Sox are 219 points behind the Athletics and 168 behind the Naps.

* * *

The terrific clip at which the Athletics and Naps are travelling is shown in the fact that the Athletics have won ten straight games, while the Naps have captured eleven out of their last twelve starts.

* * *

Joe Jackson, the Nap slugger, pounded a ball over the highest tier of the right field grandstand in the Polo Grounds yesterday, the longest hit ever made in New York.

* * *

Cincinnati went into seventh place yesterday by virtue of a victory of the Dodgers pushing the Pilgrims into the cellar.

* * *

The Athletics amassed three doubles, three triples and ten singles off the Tiger twirlers yesterday, amassing fourteen runs.

* * *

Jack Coombs, the star twirler of the Athletics, is rapidly recovering from his illness and may be able to get back into the game before the Western teams conclude their visits in Philadelphia.

* * *

Joe Birmingham, manager of the Naps, is wondering just what he'll do with himself when his busted leg mends to the point of permitting him to get back into the game. Ryan, who is substituting for Birmingham, is batting well over .300 and fielding in faultless style.

* * *

Christy Mathewson seems to have no terrors for the Cardinals. In New York, a short while back, they batted the "Old Master" out of the box, and yesterday they touched him for eleven hits, six runs and a victory.

Devore, outfielder, and Grob, infielder, who were traded to the Reds by the Giants some weeks back, aided materially in the Reds' 4 to 3 victory over the Dodgers yesterday.

* * *

The Senators rad a rather easy time defeating the Browns yesterday scoring five runs in the third inning and clinching the game.

* * *

Alexander of the Phillies was unhittable yesterday when hits meant runs and as a result the Quakertown boys won a victory over the Pirates.

MIKE MURPHY'S FUNERAL TO BE HELD MONDAY

PHILADELPHIA, June 5.—Mike Murphy, the dean of athletic trainers, who died here yesterday after an illness lasting for fifteen years, will be buried next Monday. Funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock in the morning from St. James' Roman Catholic Church in West Philadelphia.

The death of the great trainer was a severe blow to the athletic world and to all lovers of clean, wholesome sport. He has always had a big following and his loss will be a great one to athletics.

The University of Pennsylvania is preparing to honor the man who has gained so many honors for its colors. When news of Murphy's death was received at Penn, the flags on the university buildings and fraternity houses were lowered to half staff and all athletic activities were ordered suspended until after the last remains of the coach of winning Olympic and college teams have been placed at rest.

Another Shake-up in the Yale Crew

NEW LONDON, Ct., June 5.—When Yale's varsity shell went out on the river yesterday a change was noticed in the make-up of the crew. Denegre, who has been rowing at No. 3, was taken out and Freeman took his seat. The eight was sent on a two-mile speed trial. The time was about eleven minutes.

The Eli freshmen also had a shake-up, Gallard at bow being displaced by Stauffer. The varsity crew rowed in the new English shell, while the freshmen tried out their brand new Ward boat.

KIMBALL MAKES QUEER RECORD AT BRAE-BURN

By H. P. FARRINGTON.

A new record for the Brae Burn Country Club course in West Newton was established recently by "Jack" Kimball, playing in a foursome with "Dezzy" Wadsworth, one-quarter of the Battery A football team, Tom Ashley, the Pemberton lawn tennis champion in 1905, and "Hup" King, the Barney Oldfield of Brae Burn.

The record is not for the full course, but the first five holes, but it will stand nevertheless for some little time.

Eighteen lost balls, on five holes, accomplished in the almost unbelievable time of one hour and seventeen minutes, during this period never appearing on the course, but making it possible for his fellow competitors to follow him by various noises that issued from the woods, as he failed each shot through the undergrowth, or chided an offending branch or blackberry vine.

Used a Wooden Ball.

"Dezzy" was supplying the ammunition for "Jack's" natural history research, and not considering it in a serious vein, thought he would put one over. He succeeded beautifully, but three lives were endangered.

A small wooden ball, painted and striped like a golf ball, was put on the tee, with instructions not to lose it. It only required thirty-six strokes to play this ball from the sixth tee to the green, and every stroke was a person, for it sounded as though Kimball had started breaking up housekeeping. Finally the three onlookers had stood the comedy as long as their sides would permit, and from a joke it was becoming actual punishment for them to continue laughing.

Jack naturally wondered why he couldn't get anything but low bumping shots of thirty, that were not in any way affected by the wind, and why it sounded as though he was hammering cobblestones, while his playmates with apparent ease were getting three times as far without the dub his shots occasioned.

Fail to Recognize "Record."

No official recognition was given this new record, and from various secret sources the news has crept out that no one will attempt to better this mark Kimball has a few scratches to show for this exceptional record, and a few more are coming to him as the mosquitoes saw him first and counted each stroke from vantage points.

Note—This does not qualify Kimball, from a rating at scratch with Oulmet and Schmidt.

Murphy's funeral probably will take place Saturday.

MONTREAL, Que., June 5.—Physicians today feared that Miles Main, pitcher for the Buffalo International League team who was hit on the head by a batted ball in Tuesday's game with Lee local club, will become permanently deaf and temporarily, if not permanently, blind. Main's eardrums are said to have been broken and his optic nerve badly affected.

STARS TO SHOW IN BIG TRACK MEET SATURDAY

By THOMAS J. HALPIN.

(Quarter-Mile Champion of United States and Canada.)

Franklin Field will be the Mecca of sport followers next Saturday, for the games and sports which will be held all day under the direction of the Park and Recreation Department of the City of Boston are attracting much attention. Nearly every athlete of note in this city has entered and many of the races will prove as interesting as any yet held by the city.

One of the principal events of interest will be the two-mile run in which Silva and Hedlund, both of the B. A. A., will run from scratch. This race was put on at the special request of these two athletes. Silva believes that he is able to defeat Hedlund over the two-mile route, while Hedlund says that Silva can not be a mate of whining.

Many Harvard students have also entered the two-mile event. The athletic management of the Harvard track team have assured the directors of Saturday's meet that the entire track team of Harvard would be competitors in this meet. This will add a great deal of interest to the race, as the B. A. A. has also entered men in every event.

The Lynn team has been sounding rapidly into shape for the New England and National A. A. U. championships, which will take place the last of this month. The Harvard team has been in fine shape for some time, owing to the interclass meets.

One of the features of Dorchester Day celebrations has been the bicycle road race which took place over the course of the Neponset A. A. This course will be from in front of the Four Chester Club at Blue Hill avenue, past Mattapan square to the old Pond road and return, locating at Franklin Field about 4 o'clock.

The Neponset Club, with the wealth of long-distance runners, will make a strong effort to capture all the leading places, but from the number of entries received from various clubs the local club has a hard row to hoe to get first honors. Among the most prominent entries are Tom Libby, member of the American Olympic marathon team, Israel England winner of many long-distance races, and Jessing Madden, one of the best of the local 10-mile runners.

Chinese Nine to Play.

NEW YORK, June 5.—The Chinese baseball team of Hawaii which is touring the country will make its first appearance in the East in a game with a semi-pro team here on Sunday.

Groton Crew First.

GROTON, June 5.—Groton School won in the boat race with Exeter here by three-quarters of a length.

ENGLISH BLADES CAUSE ELI CREW TO LOSE SPEED

By CONSTANCE S. TITUS,

America's Foremost Amateur Oarsman.

NEW LONDON, Ct., June 5.—I was out on Yale's coaching launch yesterday afternoon and and a very good look at Yale's varsity crew as they were out in their English shell. They used a new set of English oars of very narrow blade and when they caught the water the blades ripped through the water very fast and churned up a great deal of foam.

The blade of an American oar is fully as much wider and goes deeper in the water and has something solid to push against. The Yale boat rocks considerably on the recovery of the stroke, especially when the rowers' hands pass their knees. On the reach out the oars feather and retard the speed of the boat greatly. The reason of that is the men sit on alternate sides of the shell and not over the keel, as the American boats are rigged.

Yale has a very snappy crew, especially in Stroke Crocker. The remainder of the crew is the footing of Yale's rowing. They are very poor oarsmen, and I do not think they will be able to go it route if Harvard sets a hard pace, as the Yale boys are not used to a hard rowing stroke. Coach Hood had them in the lobbing boat I am afraid, trying to teach them to hold the seat on the recover and swing their backs up at a stiff, sweep way, practically breaking their backs.

The men are not physically fit to stand the ordeal as they do not get enough hard work daily. I followed them down the three mile route. They were doing short stretches of a half a mile at a time were pushing twenty-five to the minute and were in a while getting it up to thirty.

English Team 2½ to 1 Favorite Over Defenders

NEW YORK, June 5.—Odds of 2½ to 1 were laid in Wall Street today that the British polo team would defeat the American team at the forthcoming polo match.

One bet of $2,500 against $1,000 was made that the British would win. A well-known New York broker took the small end of the bet, it being understood that the odds were being laid by English admirers of the British team.

Kennedy and Eagan in Bout Tonight

Joe Eagan and Steve Kennedy, two of the leading lightweights in New England, will clash in a twelve round bout in Lawrence this evening. Eagan and Kennedy are bitter rivals and the bout should be a fast one.

These boys met in Lawrence recently and the bout was declared a draw by Referee Jerry Moore, who will also be the third man in the ring tonight. They also fought at the Allen A. A. a few ago Tuesday and Eagan won the decision. Kennedy was not in condition for his last bout with the South Boston boy and this is counted for his downfall. He has been in strict training since last Thursday and believes that he will turn the tables on Eagan tonight.

Jimmy Gillespie's Condition Improved

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., June 5.—Third Baseman Jimmy Gillespie of the local club, whose skull was fractured by a ball pitched by Hardgrove of the Birmingham club, is gradually improving today. After a consultation the physicians stated that an operation would not be necessary.

AMERICAN POLO TEAM SELECTED FOR BIG MATCH

NEW YORK, June 5.—The American Polo Association has announced the following lineup of the American team which will defend the International Cup at Meadowbrook next June:

No. 1, [illegible] Stoddard, New York.
No. 2, [illegible] Talbott, Baltimore.
No. 3, [illegible] Milburn, New York.

A more sweeping change than the make-up of the team itself has [illegible] been made. Not since the days of the [illegible] has the team been entirely [illegible] from the ranks of the Meadow Brook [illegible] but Devereux Milburn has added [illegible] to the team. Payne Whitney [illegible] Devereux Milburn [illegible] be implicated [illegible] behind [illegible] as captain and [illegible] Whitney [illegible] brothers [illegible].

Milburn has [illegible] and 6, whether he [illegible] back. The [illegible] of the new team [illegible] are [illegible] polo reserves [illegible] baseball keepers at No. 1 [illegible] goal man. It was [illegible] which [illegible] Stoddard is rated at [illegible] No. 3, and a [illegible] of No. 1. Stevenson is rated at seven goals.

THE TRIPLE TIE

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

The Most Absorbing New Serial Any Newspaper Has Published in Years

What Has Gone Before

GORDON KELLY, a young man from the mountains, who says that he has never played on any ball club and that he has never even seen a ball game in his life, induces Manager Bill Smith of the Atlanta club to give him a try. He has a phenomenal playing in the field and his no less phenomenal batting so bewilders almost immediately the sensation of the baseball world. Fifteen of the sixteen big league presidents journey to Atlanta to secure him, and the Boston Red Sox finally buy his release from the Atlanta club for $ ——.

In the meantime he meets and falls in love with Mildred Deery, daughter of Garvin Deery, a rich timber speculator. The girl, who is in her turn much impressed, has remained in ignorance of his athletic eminence, and goes to see the last appearance in Atlanta of the "Fifty Thousand Dollar Beauty," without the least idea that her friend is that famous star.

In the last half of the ninth inning, with the score 9 to 8 against Atlanta, two out and the bases full, Gordon hits a terrific smash. He sends in three runs, but in sliding for home he crashes into the catcher, is knocked unconscious and his leg is broken. Mildred Deery runs on to the field and takes his head in her lap. Gordon knows nothing of her share in this sensational incident until, several days later, he reads the papers in the hospital. As soon as he can he calls up the Deery home on the telephone, only to be told that "Miss Deery is out of town and it is not known when she will return." The night after he leaves the hospital, Gordon Kelly disappears as if from the face of the earth.

When Gavin Deery, learns how his daughter figured on the ball field, he is thunderstruck and arranges to take her up to his bungalow in the mountains. Forrest Cain, who has become Gordon's enemy, is also in love with Mildred

CHAPTER XXI.—(Continued)

DEERY spent a day in the mountains with his surveyor and his superintendent and then making sure that Mildred was comfortably settled and apparently enjoying herself, he returned to Atlanta. Cain called at his office soon after he arrived, ostensibly to inquire if Deery had made any progress in securing the Kelly property in the mountains, but in reality to find out where Mildred was. He secured his information, Mildred's father looking upon Cain with considerably more favor than her mother did, and laid his plans accordingly.

Remembered Shack

He recalled having built on his mountain property, three years back, a shack which he had intended to use as headquarters for hunting trips, but he had never utilized it; in fact, he had never visited his property for any purpose. He resolved now to go to the mountains on an alleged hunting trip. Visiting Deery's office again, he was shown maps of the region and got the lay of the land. He examined the maps with interest, as Deery unfolded his plan for turning the whole section into commercial purposes.

The tract of land Deery had mapped out for his undertaking consisted of the Deery, Kelly and Cain properties. Together they extended ten miles north and south and thirteen miles east and west, making a huge section of 130 square miles. The Deery property, the smallest of the three, began five miles north of the railroad and extended three miles to the Kelly property. East and west it measured ten miles. The Kelly property was nearly twice as large as Deery's, being four miles from north to south and thirteen miles from east to west, besides a section that cut down to the right of the Deery land, the whole forming a piece shaped like a carpenter's square. Beyond the Kelly domain was the Cain property, which was a long, narrow strip three miles north and south by thirteen miles east and west. Pew Creek flowed north and south through the whole section, sometimes placidly and at others tumbling over waterfalls. Three or four miles to the east the creek was paralleled by a smaller stream, which finally turned to the west and flowed into the creek. One solitary road wound up through the whole section in about the centre of it, hitting the brook in two or three places.

Returning to his rooms, Cain ordered his man to pack suitable clothing in a trunk for a hunting trip, and, selecting a couple of guns and as many revolvers from the rack, he ordered the requisite supplies, not forgetting the liquids, sent up to Pew Creek station by express. He boarded the train next day for that place, taking his man George along with him.

CHAPTER XXII.

"DEAREST mother," wrote Mildred. "I haven't been here twenty-four hours, yet I am simply in love with the mountains and just at this minute I feel as though I never wanted to go back to the city again. Do hurry and come up.

"Dad brought up everything he thought I could possibly need, but I find there are one or two things he didn't think of that I would like to have if it isn't too much trouble. In the first place, I want to go fishing and Elmer (Dad will tell you all about Elmer) says I must have a flyrod and a book of flies, and in the second place please get me a khaki skirt and a khaki blouse and khaki leggins (you know the sizes) and a khaki hat if they have them for women. Get a short skirt if you can find one; if not, a long one, and I can shorten it here. Also please have the "Georgian" sent up here every day. I think I will begin to read the newspapers and learn what's going on." (She wanted the "Georgian" to keep posted on the condition of Gordon Kelly.) There was more to the letter, mostly of an intimate nature, and it closed: "Now, mother, please come as soon as you can. From your loving daughter, Mildred."

Thought of Gordon

In the calm and peaceful mountain region, where the only sounds were those of the wind through the trees and the quiet hum of insects and the twittering of birds, Mildred Deery had time aplenty for her inmost thoughts. At odd moments, perhaps to divert her thoughts, she would pick up one of the many books her father had given her, but nothing in the reading line seemed to interest her and her mind would go back to a certain tall, broad-shouldered, clean limbed young man she had last seen borne away in the arms of his teammates. And she thought of the soft, brown hair of his head and of his clear-cut features, and his charming smile that displayed rows of dazzling white teeth, and of his gentleness of speech and action and of the hundred and one little things about him that appealed to her. They were happy thoughts. Are not these the thoughts of a woman who loves a man? She longed to see him. She longed to go to him, yet that would be unwomanly. It was he that must seek her, if he cared to do so. The thoughts of that scene on the ball field troubled her. What could he have thought of it all, she wondered. Ah, well, something told her, things would come out all right.

Her mother came and the days that followed seemed to be the most delightful of her life. She roamed the woods with Elmer. She whipped the brook with her flyrod in her smart suit of khaki, and under Elmer's tutelage she quickly became an expert fisherwoman. She drove her mother over the one road of the mountains and in other ways enjoyed every minute of her time.

"Mother, you are becoming younger every day," she exclaimed. "First thing you know people will be taking you for my young sister."

"That is sweet of you to say so, dear," smiled her mother, "but you always were a little flatterer. We old folks like to hear it, though. But seriously, Mildred, I never saw you looking better than you do this minute. You were a bit pale, especially the day you left the city, but this mountain air has driven all that away. So you don't think you will get tired of the mountains?"

A Surprise

"Never, mother dear. Please don't make me go back to the city for a long, long time."

In the midst of her contentment, something happened that upset her. She had undertaken to teach the French language to Elmer Shepard in so far as she remembered it from her schooldays, and was engaged in this occupation with him, on the porch one morning, when she heard a man's voice say:

"Hello, Mildred."

Mildred bit her lip quickly, for she knew the voice before she looked up. Forrest Cain was coming up the road that led to the bungalow. He was dressed as then, is for an afternoon stroll in Peachtree street.

"Good morning, Forrest," she said, not insincerely, as he came to the porch. She held out her hand. "What brings you away up here in the mountains?"

"Just up on a little hunting trip," he returned lightly.

"Hunting trip, with those clothes?" she laughed aloud. "Besides, don't you know you can't hunt at this season of the year?"

He had to laugh, too.

"Well, then, I came up to look over the property your father and I are interested in."

"That's better. Elmer, this is Mr Cain, from Atlanta, an old friend of ours. Will you please tell my mother that Mr Cain has come to see me?"

Cain was on the point of saying she needn't be in a hurry about that, but he thought better of it.

"How did you get here, walk?" asked Mildred.

Neither Liked Nor Disliked.

"I had my car sent up. I left it out on the main road. A few days of traveling around in a wagon was enough for me. When you once start in on an automobile you can never go back to a horse."

"Going to stay up here long?"

"It all depends," said Cain with a smile.

Mildred was glad her mother joined them at that moment. She did not dislike Forrest Cain. For that matter there was no one she disliked. It was her nature to be nice to her friends. She was provoked with Cain for a time when he acted so rudely to Gordon Kelly that stormy morning, but she had forgiven him without his asking. She had known him for many years, but she had never had any feeling for him other than she had for any friend of the family. She didn't like him particularly, yet she did not dislike him. Intuition told her, some months since, that Forrest Cain was trying to make himself agreeable to her. She neither encouraged nor discouraged him. She simply treated him as she had always treated him. That was all there was to it.

Yet, within herself, she felt annoyed that he should come upon her in her quiet contentment. She knew instinctively that he had come to see her and that his alleged business was only a makeshift. She was not glad to see him, yet she tried to be nice to him, as was her nature. The reason was not far to seek. At that particular time Forrest Cain came as a jarring note against her serene thoughts of Gordon Kelly.

"Let's go for a ride in the car," suggested Cain soon after Mrs. Deery joined them. "You can drive, Mildred; your mother can sit beside you and I'll occupy the rumble seat."

"Oh, Forrest," said Mildred quickly, "We have a runabout here and mother and I know our one solitary road by heart."

Somehow Cain felt he had lost a point, but he assured himself that there were plenty of time to recover it. Soon after he went away, declining an invitation to stay to lunch.

"Do you like Forrest?" asked Mildred of her mother. Elmer was busy elsewhere.

"I don't know, child," replied the mother cautiously. "I had never considered him in the way of liking him or disliking him. Your father and I have known him all his life. His sister and I were schoolmates. She is much older than he is. Why do you ask?"

"On My Nerves"

"Well, lately he has seemed to get on my nerves. There is something about him that doesn't seem just right. I try to treat him as I always have treated him, but I can't get rid of that feeling."

"You may be right, dear, but I think you need not worry about Forrest Cain."

This little talk left them both serious. Mrs Deery went indoors to mix a salad dressing, she said, and Mildred was left to her own troubled thoughts.

Cain came to see Mildred every day, driving to the bungalow in his automobile. If there was any change in Mildred he did not notice it. She treated him the same as she always had treated him. The hours he spent with her were pleasant enough, but he didn't feel as if he was making much progress in his campaign. For one thing, Mildred never seemed willing to go with him alone. She either took her mother or Elmer with her when they went driving, or fishing, or on a little excursion into the woods, or roamed the hills. The time he and to himself was torture to him. He missed the gay life of the city. He missed his club friends. Under the circumstances he could invite none of his friends to spend a while with him in the mountains. He made his man's life miserable, cursing him out at the slightest provocation. There was no escape for George and that worthy was on the point more than once of throwing up his job and going back to the Pullman Company.

Things went along and finally Mrs. Deery had to go to Atlanta, promising Mildred she would return to the mountains as soon as possible. Deery himself came up for a week-end and took his wife back with him. Thereupon Cain renewed his attentions two-fold. But it seemed that Elmer was always around and the lad began to get on his nerves.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

"Hunting trip, with those clothes?" Mildred laughed aloud. "Besides, don't you know you can't hunt at this season of the year?"

Posed by Florence Sharley (as Mildred Deery) and Frederic Ormonde (as Forrest Cain), of the Castle Square Theatre Company, Boston.

The Perfumery Nuisance

By DOROTHY DIX

A PERFUMERY manufacturer, speaking for the Perfumery Manufacturers' Association before the Ways and Means Committee in Washington the other day, made a pathetic protest against increasing the duty on the raw materials from which extracts are made. And he said he wasn't speaking for himself, but for the sake of the poor girls who would have to cut down on their use of scent if prices were raised. Quoth he:

"The best market for perfumery is in the factory towns of New England. Why, I know of a typewriter who spends at least two days' salary each week on her toilet articles. I ask that perfumery—this slice of happiness—be preserved to the shop girl and the factory girl, for they are the ones who enjoy it most.

Most of us who ride in street cars, and attend theatres and other crowded places wish that the price of perfumery could be put up so high that it would be prohibitive, and that the women and men whose "slice of happiness" consists in going about smelling to Heaven could be denied that malodorous joy. To use attar of roses is a breach of the peace. To disseminate patchouli is a crime that should be punishable by law.

However, that is another story. So is the instance of the girl typewriter who spends the proceeds of two days a week work on her toilet articles. If a young woman prefers to put cold cream and rouge on the outside of her face instead of roast beef and potatoes on the inside, it is her own affair.

THE INTERESTING THING

But the really interesting thing—and the pitiful thing—in this manufacturer's testimony is that the biggest markets for perfumery are the mill towns of New England, because it shows how madly women grasp at the luxuries of life, even if they must deny themselves the necessities.

A girl will have her bit of ribbon if she has to go without bread to get it. She will shiver for lack of sufficient clothing, to put the money in a string of imitation pearls. She will sit up half the night, doing without the sleep and rest she needs, to make her silly lace trimmed garments which have no wear in them. She puts her hard-earned money in flimsy silk stockings and paper soled pumps that come to pieces at the first wearing, instead of good, substantial stockings and shoes.

Nor is the working girl the only sinner in this respect. Practically all women put ornaments and show before use. Give a woman a certain sum of money to furnish a house, and she will spend three-fourths of it on bric-a-brac and gilt chairs for which she has no earthly use, while she does without the things in the kitchen that would lessen her labor by half. She will have a beaded sofa to the parlor that is too good to sit upon, although her family has not a single comfortable bed on which to sleep.

Worse still, she will set apart the best room in the house, the room that gets the most sun, and light and air, for show, while the family huddles in the back.

ALL FOR SHOW.

Then there is the woman who literally starves her family in order that it may make a show when it goes out on the street. She denies her children the milk, and butter, and meat that they need to make them healthy and strong, to put lace on their petticoats and fur on their caps, and she works herself into the ground and her husband into nervous prostration for the sake of living in a little better neighborhood than they can afford.

Men are far wiser in this respect than women are. A man is generally willing to seem what he is, and to live according to his means. If he is a working man he dresses like a working man, and he does not try to ape the appearance and clothes of millionaires; but every woman wants you to think that she has just strolled over from Commonwealth avenue and left her limousine on the corner.

So she must have a dress of the cut of Mrs. Astorbilt, though she has to buy shoddy to do it, and must imitate the style of her hat as often as Miss Tossem does, though she starves in the doing of it. It's all very silly and very foolish, and makes one realize that the thing that women most need to learn is the law of values.

If they would only take the necessities and leave the luxuries alone they would find that they had really gotten the luxuries too, for there is no luxury equal to being really comfortable. The girls who spends her two days a week salary on toilet articles would be certain if she put that much money into good food that there is no cosmetic equal to health, no rouge that gives the color that does good red blood. Also that no perfumery yet devised by the chemist is so refined and dainty as the odorless odor, so to speak, that is the result of a plentiful use of soap and water.

WHAT THEY WOULD GET

And all women would find that if they spent their money for the plain, substantial things they need, and left out the elegancies they crave, they would have a comfort of body and ease of mind of which they had never dreamed. The ache in our hearts and the gnawing in our stomachs are the result of our having lunched upon a macaroon and a salted almond, instead of corned beef and cabbage.

The real reason why we all complain so much about the high cost of living is because we are aspding our money on the frills of life instead of the essentials. We think we are bound to have automobiles and go to the opera, and when we've done that we haven't anything left with which to buy butcher's meat and groceries.

We should all be happy and contented if we had the courage to do without perfumery, as it were.

The Mistakes of Jennie

Being a Series of Chapters in the Life of a City Girl

"No, Tom---I'll Never Marry You"

Chapter Seven

WHEN Tom found Jennie lying on the sofa crying her eyes out, he tried to talk to her, but Jennie turned her face to the wall and sobbed all the harder.

Poor Tom didn't know what to do and thought something awful must have happened to make her act that way. Jennie, who had always been so carefree, laughing and joking with every one she met.

She wouldn't tell even her mother where she had been. Tom tried his best to comfort her and finally did learn that she had been auto riding with a man.

Tom got real excited when he found this out and was for going out and finding THE MAN and punching his head. But Jennie didn't even know THE MAN'S name or where he lived.

When Jennie had quieted down and they had talked some more, Tom asked her to marry him. Tom got twelve dollars a week and he was sure they could get along.

It would be rather hard sledding at first, but they could rent a cheap little house out of town and maybe they could have a small garden, and just think of the fun they would have, and, besides, it wouldn't be long before he was getting more money. But Jennie, who had just had a wee taste of LIFE, could see she would never be satisfied with that way of living.

Besides, she had lived that way all her life—never any of the luxuries, but only the bare necessities—and she was tired, tired of it all. Why couldn't she have nice dresses and good times like other girls she had seen? If Jennie could have seen the OTHER girls when they were NOT in the midst of some good times and when they stopped and DARED to let themselves THINK—how different would have been her decision about not marrying Tom!

Or if she could have known the girls that ONCE had THOUGHT the same as Jennie was thinking now—girls that would give their right arms to marry a man like Tom and live in a little house with a wee, tiny garden—rather skimpy, maybe, but it's living a REAL life—and not having to smile and appear happy when their hearts were choken with misery!

But poor little Jennie DIDN'T and COULDN'T see those things THEN, and told Tom: "No, I will never marry you."

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

PA took Ma & me to a bankwet one nite. It was a bankwet gave by a Civick Purity Leeg & there was as many women & children there as there was men. Sum of the men was fine speekers & thare was one suffraget thare who also made a fine speech, but thare was other speeches made which made the pepul yawn & made the toastmaster look at his watch.

Pa made a speech. It was one of the last kind of speeches, only worse than sum of the other bad ones. Me & Ma both knew that Pa cuddent make a speech & we both tould him so, but Pa sed Nobody aprechiates a grate man except strangers. His frends & his wife and children think he is so good. I am going to make this speech no matter what you say, he tould Ma.

ANOTHER TIME

But think of that speech you do one time at the Mackybee bankwet, sez Ma. Dount you reemember how the toastmaster hated to interrup you after you had talked for a hour & said nothing. You hated to sit down that nite, dident you, sed Ma, retort after everybody agreed with the toast master that you had talked long enuff.

I have lerned a lot about publick speeking since then, sed Pa, always redy to greefend hisself. I have lerned just how long to talk to a audience & what to say to them at the beggining & at the end of a speech. Dount be afrade that I wont do myself justice, sed Pa. I am too old a hand to lose my hed, & I will bet that after my speech is cuvert, which wont be long, you and Bobbie will be proud of me.

Ma & me was afrade not, but we went with Pa & at least we had lots of nice things to eet. That is one of the best things as he goes.

My frends, he becgan, I am at a loss to understand now I am called upon to make a speech, because I seldom if ever talk and speechmaking is out of my line. I now the thoughts that are in my hed, sed Pa, chasing around like a mill race in the vast krey of Time and blending with the ochun of eternity which ewrey man and ever shall be. I know these thoughts, Pa sed, but I can not express them as have sum of the gifted orators preceding me, whose words were sounding like the works of Demosthienes dreenouncing Julius Cicero, sed Pa.

BEGINNING TO WABBLE

Bobbie, sed Ma to me, pare beelcved fathey is beegining to wabble in his orasshun. I feer the worst, Ma whispered.

And yet, Pa sed to the Civick Purity Leeg, and yet I feel that I can add my mite to what has been so fittingly said about the staintless purity of a grate city. It is splendid to bild a grate city, Pa sed, but it is more than needful to keep it clean. Athens, Carthage, Troy, Rome—whare are they? sed Pa. Gone, vanished like the whirling dust that sweeps beefore a simoon. Why did they not endure, those wundrus cities of the anshents? asked Pa. Because they had no Leeg of Civick Purity. Without street sprinklers and street sweepers, Pa sed, no city can last thru the ages. I say we shud keep our streets clean at any cost, Pa sed. I will now give you sum facks and figgers to show how much munny is needed to thurely clean our city.

Then they made Pa set down & explained to him that the Civick Leeg of Purity meant to keep the city clean morally. On the way hoam Ma tould Pa his bed was gitting fat.

From Frying Pan to Fire

Lake was delighted with his new car. It combined speed with comfort to perfection, and the proud owner, glowing with satisfaction, watched the speedometer steadily rising—twenty, thirty-five miles an hour—until the car seemed positively to be flying along the road.

Then suddenly a policeman bove in sight, and, holding out a hand, signaled to Lake to stop.

"What is it?" the motorist asked irritably, as the car slowed down, the friction of the tires against the road causing sparks to fly in all directions.

"Well, sir, I must"—

"Oh, nonsense!" retorted Lake. "Pitch that up and keep your mouth shut, constable."

And as the car shot forward again two half dollars clinked on the roadway.

Two minutes later he ran into a huge obstruction, and when he had succeeded more or less in disentangling himself together, Lake murmured faintly to his chauffeur:

"I wonder, after all, if that cop merely wanted to warn me that a tree had fallen across the road?"

Two Sides to a Question

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THOUGH love and marriage are the dreams of every girl, happiness is not dependent on either, and often one is incompleet without them.

There are two sides to the question. The girl who is looking anxiously for the coming of a lover, and who grows unhappier when he is delayed, is the one only one side. She takes no account of the look of care, unhappiness, and discontent on the face of the wife. She does not see, she refuses to see, that matrimony does not always bring returns commensurate for the price one must pay.

Perhaps it may lessen the discontent of the girl who has no lover to compare the life of the woman who never marries with that of the wife.

The girl has time and opportunity for cultivating every talent with which she has been endowed. The only talents the wife is given opportunity to develop are those of economy and patience.

The happiness of a nation depends on its power to dream, and this being true of the whole is true of the part. The girl who dreams of an ideal lover, and the dream is never shattered; a wife has no illusions left.

A WIFE'S WORK

A girl has many hours in which she has nothing disagreeable to do; but the wife finds she has more to do for the rest of her life than any man could stand up under.

The uncertainty of the girl centres around WHO is to be her husband, and is not unpleasant. The uncertainty of wifehood is WHERE he is, and is a tragedy.

The criticisms a girl receives in her home are loving and kindly; those the wife receives are less kindly, and her rewards for effort to please are less sure.

The girl walks as if she owned the earth. Ten years after she has married she will walk as if she were carrying it on her shoulders.

"If I don't marry," a girl will say, "I will be an old maid." . . . "If I hadn't married, and been tied down by the cares of a husband and home," she will say some years later, "I might have won fame and fortune by developing my talents."

There is loneliness in spinsterhood, but there is also PEACE.

The girl who marries sentences herself to self-sacrifice and hard labor for life. Her only reward is Love, and could you, my dear little girl with the discontented look because your lover has not come, count up the number of wives you know who are systematically and regularly cheated out of their payments?

The girl who never marries is the one to whom opportunity is given for being the blessing and mainstay of her parents' home. There is no avenue for developing her character which matrimony grants and spinsterhood denies.

TWO SIDES

There are two sides to the question: One can be a happy spinster; one may be a happy wife.

The former is a question of will. The latter depends on a string of ifs long enough to encircle the globe.

I do not want my girls to care less for love, but I do want them to value more highly the greater privileges, the fewer burdens, the lighter loads, the broader opportunities and the surer peace that await the woman to whom love and marriage never come.

I want them, for their own sake, to look with less panic-stricken fright and greater sanity upon the spinster's side of the question.

Sifted

"I was out motoring the other day."

"Sir?"

"Yes, and I came to a rise but could find no means of getting anchlue over."

"Well, what else . . . and thought it over."

"Oh, I just . . . over."

Daysey Mayme and Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

THE Children's Congress had been called in Session Extraordinary by Vice-President Wilberforce Hardop, aged six.

"We meet to consider the plight of our beloved president, Chauncey Devere Appleton," the call read, and the delegates dropped balls and dolls and toddled with bowed heads to the meeting. What could be the plight of that great soul none but the vice-president knew, and the delegates conferred in anxious whispers over what dire secret he carried in his breast.

"Perhaps," suggested the Honorable Horace Whimpers, aged three, "our president overtaxed his brain compiling statistics on the number of times every mother says 'Don't' in the course of a day."

But the idea that that mammoth brain could be overtaxed was received with such scorn that the Honorable Horace Whimpers crawled under a chair in deep humiliation and fell fast asleep.

Vice-President Hardop called the meeting to order with a baby's rattle for a gavel, pointing to it and saying dramatically: "It is His, but where is He?"

WHERE HE WAS

A pause during which he looked as if accusing the delegates of hiding their president under their blouses and aprons. Then he continued, "He is chained to the bedpost at home!"

Such degradation! Such ignominy! A gasp of horror swept the room.

The vice-president mopped his brow. "I will tell you all," he said

"The mother (groans and hisses) of our illustrious president (applause) hasn't the sense brain and vision of her son (cheers). She worries! (A light was beginning to break.)

"She read of a boy who broke his leg while roller skating and burned our president's skates.

"The next day she read of a boy whose shoes gave him fatal blood poisoning, and she compelled our president to go barefoot. Then she heard of a boy who was killed while playing in the streets, so she chained our president to the bedpost.

"Yesterday she read of a boy who met death by swallowing a trousers button, so she removed" . . . Here the speaker choked hysterically and the ladies present and completed his sentence with a cough.

"When I called this morning to consult him about mothers who play cards for prizes, I found him chained to a bedpost with nothing on but a wool shirt, and as Mrs. Appleton had just read that wool irritates the skin and she was getting ready to rob him of that."

A picture of their president reduced to such a state of degradation caused the delegates to weep. All had mothers who worried! All realized to its fullest extremity what that meant.

All save one, Leona Larson, age four.

"My mother never worries," she said, sobbing more violently than the others. "She never cares if I get hurt and always and loves me. She just laughs and tells me to hold a Well Thought!"

"Ah," said the vice-president with a groan, "your plight is worse than his or ours!"

Then the delegates, bowed with the weight of mothers who worry and mothers who don't, left the hall in silence.

The situation was beyond them!

Household Suggestions

Ugly cracks in furniture may be easily filled in with beeswax, so that the cracks will hardly show. Slightly soften the beeswax until it becomes pliable; then press it firmly into the cracks and smooth the surface over with a thin knife. Sandpaper the surrounding wood when some dust into the beeswax. This gives a finish to the wood, and when it is varnished the cracks will have disappeared.

If your skirt has got splashed with mud hang it before a fire—but not too close—so that the mud may dry quickly. When dry the mud spots should be loosened by rubbing with the edge of a penny, and the dust, should be gently brushed off with a brush of moderate firmness. If after this brushing the mud marks are still visible sponge the spots with alcohol or methylated spirit.

To remove smoke marks from ceilings mix a thick paste of starch and water, and with a clean flannel spread it over the mark. Allow it to get thoroughly dry, then brush off with a soft brush and the marks will have disappeared.

Before sweeping the carpets take an old round tin, pierce holes in the bottom and fill with common salt. Sprinkle this over the carpet. It prevents the dust from rising, brightens the colors and prevents moths.

To prevent an oven from smoking when cooking a joint, clean it out thoroughly once a month with white chalk. It will take all smell away, and it will look like an enamelled oven.

A teaspoonful of borax to a quart of water will make hard water soft, so that it can be used for washing the most delicate skin.

Do You Know That—

The longest hunger strike on record was carried out some years ago by a Frenchman named Grunke, who was arrested for murder in circumstances which left no doubt as to his guilt. He determined to starve himself to death in order to escape the guillotine, and from the day of his arrest refused to eat in spite of every effort on the part of the prison authorities, who first tried tempting him to eat by placing the most dainty meals in his cell, and when that failed, attempted forcible feeding. Grunke held out for sixty-three days, at the end of which time he died.

It is reported that all German submarines are to be fitted with guns. Two types have been selected—a twelve-pounder, which can be housed, and a one-pounder, which will be permanently in position. The older boats will probably carry one-pounders only. The twelve-pounders are on special high-angle mounting for use against aircraft if necessary. The crew of these guns consists of four men. There is room in the gun and one to hand the ammunition. The newer boats will carry two of these guns.

Farmers in the Boyertown district of Pennsylvania range for miles round to attend a sale held at the fireman of a number of heavy rolled steel coffin for ten years ago, but they were too cumbersome and could not be disposed of. The coffin was finally given a drive-way forty-two feet wide for automobiles and other vehicles, with twelve feet of sidewalk on either side. The new drive-way deck will carry four street railway tracks. The entrance over the chapel will be ninety-three feet long. Over 1,500 concrete arches are being driven to carry the nine piers nearest the water.

LEE'S STRUGGLE WITH ILLNESS

Mrs. Stewart Tells How She Suffered from 16 to 45 Years Old—How Finally Cured.

Euphemia, Ohio.—"Because of total ignorance of how to care for myself when verging into womanhood, and from taking cold when going to school, I suffered from a displacement, and each month I had severe pains and nausea which always meant a lay-off from work for two days to four days from the time I was 16 years old.

"I went to Kansas to live with my sister and while there a doctor told me of the Pinkham remedies but I did not use them then as my faith in patent medicines was not limited. After my sister died I came home to Ohio to live and that has been my home for the last 13 years.

"The Change of Life came when I was 47 years old and about this time I saw my physical condition plainly described in one of your advertisements. Then I began using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I cannot tell you or any one the relief it gave me in the first three months. It put me right where I need not lay off every month and during the last 18 years I have not paid out two dollars to a doctor, and have been blest with excellent health for a woman of my age and I can thank Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for it.

"Since the Change of Life is over I have been a maternity nurse and being wholly self-supporting I cannot over estimate the value of good health. I have now earned a comfortable little home just by sewing and nursing since I was 52 years old. I have recommended the Compound to many with good results, as it is excellent to take before and after childbirth." — MISS EVELYN ADELIA STEWART, Euphemia, Ohio.

Three weeks later I returned home, weighing 105 pounds. My doctor having given me no assurance of recovery, I here also. . . .

FORBES TELLS REASON FOR STOCK SLUMP

By B. C. FORBES.

Business Editor of the American.

Wall street yesterday had its worst day since the 1907 panic.

Stocks were thrown on the market excitedly and recklessly when the exchange opened.

American Tobacco shares dropped fourteen points and Liggett Myers eight points on Attorney General McReynolds' threat to curb the Tobacco trust by super taxes.

The whole list reeled. A hurricane of selling orders shook prices at the opening. Europe liquidated nervously.

Quotations fell two, four, eight, ten and in one case twenty points. Almost every stock touched a new low level for the year and many sold lower than at any time since 1907.

High finance was shocked by Attorney General McReynolds' proposal to levy super tax upon all the business beyond a certain specified amount done by the so-called Tobacco trust. This, it was quickly pointed out by Wall street, would punish a company merely for its size, for its ability to obtain greater success than its competitors and would be a questionable form of class legislation.

Hawley Stocks Hit.

Edwin Hawley was reputed to be very wealthy when he died, but Wall street said yesterday that his affairs were greatly extended, that he had held more securities than liquid cash and carried a very heavy load of obligations. The bankruptcy of the Frisco railroad system, in which he was largely interested, invalidated certain securities used as collateral and wholesale liquidation, it was stated, became necessary.

The Hawley stocks certainly suffered, even though a report that a $5,000,000 loan had matured and could not be renewed may have been wholly true.

The greatest of all our capitalistic group has been undisguisedly pessimistic for many months, and it has not changed its attitude. Other powerful interests also have been urging caution.

To be quite frank, the Wilson administration has not inspired confidence in the financial world.

Here is the financial community's indictment:

"Wilson began by throwing mud at bankers. His next in command, Vice-President Marshall, set their hair on end by his denunciation of men of wealth and by what were construed as threats of confiscation of individual fortunes.

Redfield Joins In.

"Redfield chimed in by holding a pistol at the heads of manufacturers and warning them to keep on running businesses that might be ruined by free trade; the alternative being condign punishment by the government.

"McAdoo took it into his head to begin emptying the treasury of its reserve at a time when the country was already rampant, thus rendering the government impotent to come to the rescue should trouble occur during the crop moving pressure.

"The Attorney General, who won the title 'Champion Trust Buster,' has intimated that he is to go on the rampage."

Ethel Levy Loses Suit.

The chauffeur alleged that the defendant expected him to drive her from the Hendon Aerodrome to the London Hippodrome, a distance of some ten miles, in fifteen minutes.

TODAYS STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were lower at the opening of markets, but in New York there was a rally soon after the start and when the morning was half over Canadian Pacific was 217, up ½; Amalgamated 68¾, off ¼; American Smelting 61¾, up ¼; Steel 55⅝, off ⅛; American Can 27½, off ⅛; Southern Pacific 103⅝, up ⅛; Union Pacific 144, up ⅛, and Reading 156¼, up ⅛. That market was active, first hour sales totalling about 175,000 shares.

In Boston during the first hour Boston & Maine weakened, but recovered part of its loss. Coppers were lower as a class. Granby at 57 was off 1⅞, but later made a partial recovery.

There was early liquidation in London, but that market grew stronger during the morning.

New York Opened Lower.

Heavy selling caused another sharp break in the New York stock market at the opening, but after half an hour a rallying tendency developed which enabled a number of important issues to make partial recoveries. Chesapeake & Ohio, which opened at 60, or down 1⅝, sold at the lowest mark it has touched in nearly four years. This caused a renewal of reports that bears are unloading stocks left by the late Edwin Hawley. Great Northern opened at 121½ for a loss of ⅝. This was the lowest this stock has sold since 1910. Northern Pacific was ⅜ lower at 108⅝, this being the lowest level touched by this issue in two years. Steel opened at 54⅝, or 1 under its low mark of yesterday. Later it rallied to 55, which was ¼ under Wednesday's closing.

There was a flood of selling orders from London and Paris. Brokers declared, however, that there was good domestic buying outside of New York. Among the early sales were Amalgamated 1; Union Pacific ⅝; Southern Pacific 3-5; Republic Iron & Steel ⅝; Reading ⅜; New York Central ⅜; Louisville & Nashville 1; Lehigh Valley ⅝; General Electric 1; Erie ⅛; St. Paul ⅜; Canadian Pacific ½, and American Can ¼.

Among the stocks which rallied were Amalgamated, United States Steel, Reading, Northern Pacific, Erie, St. Paul and Canadian Pacific. The last named recovered all its loss.

The Curb was heavy.

There was renewed liquidation in London, although the Harrimans were supported there. Other American rails were heavily sold. Many selling orders were cabled from New York to London.

I. C. C. To Be Road Receivers?

The Interstate Commerce Commission and the House Judiciary Committee, it is stated in Washington, will consider legislation which would give the former body authority to handle railroad receiverships. It is suggested that they might be given power analagous to that exercised over national banks by comptrollers of banks in the States and which is regarded as salutary in effect.

When the commission finished a physical valuation of 200 roads, it is proposed to enact stringent laws controlling the issue of railroad securities. It is suggested that the commission, on the report of the commissaion, might receive authority to institute proceedings against any railroad violating future security regulations of the commission or abusing its power in that respect. Such proceedings would be for the protection of the creditors. Criminal proceedings against railroad officers could be brought also by the Attorney-General.

Some Frisco Smash Results.

The appointing of receivers for the St. Louis & San Francisco has caused much trouble. It has had bad influence upon a stock market that was already much debilitated and caused widespread European distrust of American securities in general. It also promises to result in a battle in banking and railroad circles. Its effect upon the fortunes of B. F. Yoakum is being discussed. One of Yoakum's receivers said: "Mr. Yoakum now has no voice in Frisco affairs. His status will be determined after we have gone over the affairs of the road with Judge Sanborn. It is possible Mr. Yoakum will be retained only in an advisory capacity."

As chairman of the road's executive committee, he has been paid $75,000 a year. It is certain that he will not get that salary hereafter. Receivers proposed to pay economy and B. L. Winchell, who got $40,000 as president, will draw but $18,000 as receiver. The Frisco has five vice-presidents who receive an average of $17,500 each. Their salaries will be cut. In fact it is proposed to have at least $200,000 a year in the pay of officials alone.

Tariff to Be Still Lower.

Senator Simmons, chairman of the committee which is handling the tariff measure in the upper branch of Congress, says that, contrary to the general supposition, the bill as a whole would show material reductions over the Underwood provisions. This necessarily means a greater importation of foreign merchandise and a corresponding loss in revenue.

The material reductions have been made in schedules and items in which there is sharp foreign competition with the domestic products.

The committee still is wrestling over proposed transfers of additional agricultural products to the free list. Barley and oats dutiable at 25 and 10 cents per bushel, respectively, and hulled barley at 1 cent a pound, have not yet been shifted to the free list, although oatmeal remains there, as provided in the House bill. It is probable the three articles named will be made free before the subcommittee reports the bill.

London Copper Quotations.

There was a bad price break in the London copper warrants market at the opening, spot and futures each being £1 2s. lower.

The metal market is weak. Second hands have offered copper in small lots at 13⅛ cents a pound cash in New York, but there were no sales of consequence. The New York Sun says:

It came to the attention of the writer yesterday that there had been offered 500,000 pounds of electrolytic, 150,000 pounds to be delivered in each of the next four months. The price at which this metal was offered was 13⅝ cents cash New York; but even at this material concession consumers are holding back, either small tonnages appeared at 13⅝ cents cash, and they took even these sparingly. With the largest selling agencies and producers the metal now quiet, although it has become largely a matter of $500, for incoming mails will bring in a number of orders for the week's bookings for the month.

China's May production amounted to 4,008,725 pounds of refined copper compared with 4,046,580 in April and 3,838,868 in May last year.

The Shannon copper output for May was 1,080,000 pounds, compared with 1,238,000 in April and 1,464,000 in May, 1912.

Financial News in Brief.

The Bank of England's minimum discount rate remains unchanged at 4½ per cent. The proportion of the bank's reserve of liabilities is 52.50 per cent against 52 per cent. last week and compares with a decline from 52.30 to 48¾ per cent. in the corresponding week last year. The Bank of Bengal at Calcutta today reduced its discount rate from 6 to 5 per cent.

There will be no hearings on the Wilson-Glass currency bill. It has been ready for some days, but its provisions have been kept secret from even members of the House Banking and Currency Committee.

So far in June orders received by the United States Steel Corporation have been at the rate of about 25,000 tons a day, or 20,000 tons per day below shipments. If this decrease prevailed through May the corporation's unfilled tonnage report for that month would show a shrinkage of 800,000 tons. About 500,000 is expected.

The Waltham Trust Company has declared a regular semi-annual dividend of $3 a share, payable July 1 to stockholders of June 26 record.

The Puritan Trust Company has declared a semi-annual dividend of 4 per cent. It is payable on July 1 to stockholders of June 28 record.

The Hudson Bay Company has declared a dividend of 30 per cent. plus a bonus of 10 per cent., making payments for the last twelve months 30 per cent.

American Snuff Company will distribute to common stockholders 11,000 shares of American Tobacco preferred and 5,000 shares of American Cigar preferred in addition to the regular quarterly dividends.

One reason given for the weakness of the London stock market is the hoarding of gold in Germany.

A. Burton Hepburn, chairman of the Currency Commission of the American Bankers' Association, has sent out a call for a meeting of the commission to be held in Atlantic City on Tuesday, June 17.

The New York sub-treasury gained $1,351,000 from the banks on Wednesday, making its net cash gain $4,390,000 since Friday.

RULING KILLS ALL HOPE OF TAX REFORM

Speaker Cushing of the House ruled today against his own taxation bill, by upholding a point of order raised by Representative Isaac Gordon of Boston. The ruling also put an end to taxation legislation for this session.

Earlier in the session a bill was introduced providing for amendments to the State Constitution relative to the authority of the General Court to impose taxes. It was a pet bill of Speaker Cushing, who argued warmly for it during three hours on the floor of the House. The measure would secure a classification of taxes which the Speaker declared would equalize the burden, but opponents of the bill declared it favored the rich against the poor. The bill was defeated.

Two weeks ago Governor Foss sent a special taxation message to the Legislature. On the Governor's recommendation for a new scheme of taxation a bill similar to the one Speaker Cushing desired was introduced. Representative Gordon raised the point of order a few days later that the new bill was improperly before the House because a similar one had already been rejected.

Frisco Crash with Larger Earnings

Charge Poor Management as Cause of Receivership—May Investigate.

NEW YORK, June 5.—The amusement of financiers over the fact that the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad Company was forced into receivership was greatly increased today when the earnings of the company for the past ten months were made public.

The total income for the ten months ending April 30, 1913, show a net increase of $1,506,075 over the corresponding period of the previous year.

The receivership was precipitated by the inability to get money to liquidate outstanding notes aggregating about $2,000,000. It has since been charged that poor management by President B. F. Yoakum was mainly responsible for the crash and the Interstate Commerce Commission may make an investigation into the management of the road.

Offers Graduated Tax on Tobaccos

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Senator Hitchcock today introduced an amendment to the tariff bill providing for a graduated tax on the output on cigars, cigarettes and plug tobacco by individual companies. This amendment is in line with the plan of Attorney-General McReynolds to cause a complete dissolution of the tobacco trust by limiting production. The rates proposed would practically prohibit production at a loss where competing companies would be compelled to enter the market in order to supply the demand.

The United States Flag Should Be Seen on the Oceans of the Earth.

The Pictures on This Page Show That in One Respect, at Least, Our Republic Has Been Going Down Hill.

Copyright, 1913, by Star Company.

The whole of the earth is man's property.

The tendency of the really strong man is to cover and control as much of the earth as possible.

The people of the United States do fairly well on land.

On the ocean, the world's big highway, we are a national failure.

On this page there are two pictures that illustrate America as "The Sea Power." We see the little boy scarcely expecting to be believed when he tells of an American flag on a ship.

And we see a picture that recalls the days of a hundred years ago when the American ship was THE SHIP and when the captain of an American ship was accustomed to seeing other ships hauling down their flags.

We don't want a navy for battle—ALTHOUGH WE DO NEED A POWERFUL NAVY TO MAKE WAR IMPROBABLE OR IMPOSSIBLE.

We need a fighting navy strong enough to make attack by other nations ridiculous. And we need a commercial navy fit to represent this nation commercially and industrially on the oceans of the world.

The nation is weak that cannot get away from the shore, that must give its carrying trade to other sailors and to foreign ships.

The big people of the world have been the ocean-going people from the days of the Phoenicians to the days in which we live.

And the wise statesmen at Washington, all legislating so fearlessly upon everything under the sun, ought to find a way to bring back the American Navy and give to this country its place on the ocean, and the character-forming work of trading in foreign seas.

The Plan to Boost Massachusetts at the Big Fair Is Not a Junket, It Is Good Business—It Pays to Advertise

The Committee on Federal Relations and the Committee on Ways and Means have recommended an appropriation of $250,000 with which Massachusetts may exhibit her manufacturing products and other things in which our Commonwealth has a just pride and which will bring her business and distinction at this greatest concourse in all time of the representatives of the world.

There is a disposition on the part of some very honest gentlemen in the Legislature to regard this appropriation as an expense incurred for a junket. Consequently they are urging that the appropriation recommended by the two committees be reduced in amount.

Nothing could be farther from the truth than the view that this expenditure is for anything in the nature of a junket. Any man who honestly believes that all of this appropriation OR ANY PART OF IT is to be spent on anything even RESEMBLING a junket, ought to vote, not to reduce the size of the appropriation, but against any appropriation at all.

The truth is that the proposed Massachusetts participation in this world-wide gathering is a matter of business and decency. Every foreign nation will be represented adequately at this exhibition, which will celebrate the greatest scientific achievement that this nation has ever contributed to the benefit of the world and will be opening the door to this Commonwealth above all other States to the billion people whose shores are washed by the waters of the Pacific.

We have more to sell to the people whose trade is reached by the Pacific Ocean than any other State in this Union save one. If advertising is good business, if fairs and exhibits are good business, then this is the best business proposition of all.

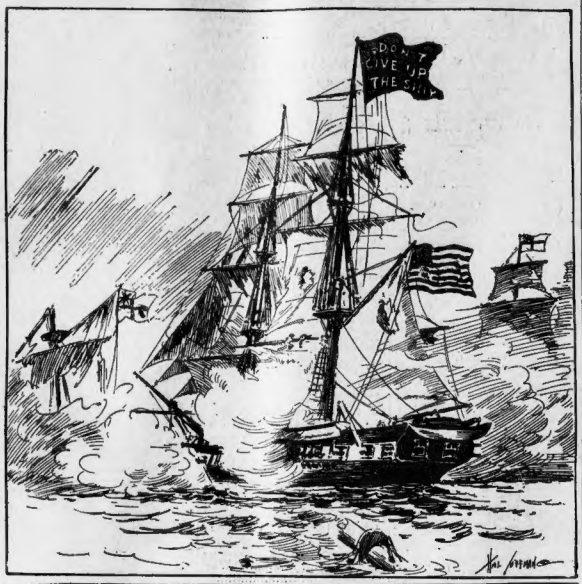
Everybody knows that advertising is good business. Everybody knows that the best advertiser makes the best profits. Everybody knows that men who have good displays at fairs and exhibits find them profitable.

But some inexperienced gentlemen of SMALL AFFAIRS tell us that the tax rate is higher this year and that we cannot afford to extend ourselves for more business. Any business man of LARGE AFFAIRS knows the folly, the pinheadedness of such an argument. Every man who has ever accomplished anything in a big way knows that when his business is going against him for some reason or other, then is the time of all times to spend MORE money, even if it has to be borrowed, to give himself another start to get out of the rut, to quicken the pulse of his business.

If a big newspaper finds itself slowing down, does it economize? Certainly not. It redoubles its effort at any cost. If a great department store finds itself running behind, does it stop advertising, does it cut down its advertising? No; IT DOUBLES ITS ADVERTISING.

EVERY SUCCESSFUL NEWSPAPER in this vicinity believes that this State should be properly represented at the coming Exposition.

The Grand American Flag 1813---1913



Today the American Flag is so rare a sight on the seas that it comes as a surprise. A hundred years ago, when Perry was beating the English fleet on Lake Erie, flying—as shown in the picture at the top—a flag bearing the words Lawrence uttered on the Chesapeake, "Don't Give Up the Ship," American vessels were the pride of every ocean. Is the American Congress to give up the American ship? (See Editorial.)

A CITY STREET

By GORDON JOHNSTONE

HERE in this narrow city street,
Where souls have honored life and death,
This thoroughfare of torrid heat,
With hot gray mouth and pungent breath,
Methinks, that eyes long used to dwell
On verdant glades may pause a space
Refreshed by lingering here a spell
On something of the commonplace.

Here is the raucous note and clear,
A lusty peddler shrills his wares;
An old man stumbles, weary seer,
'Neath pots and kettles, age and cares;
A huckster with bright greedy smiles
Inveigles women one by one,
With wagoned fruits of far off isles,
That sucked their honey from the sun.

Ah, life, what varied ways you know,
What gutters strange and wind-swept hills,
What poverty and brave rich show
Surge through your veins and surging thrill!
What want and woe and pain and bliss
Each dew-bright dawning holds unfurled!
And yet we would not part with this
For kingdoms of another world.

SING a song o' Spring-time, or sing a song o' Fall;
You'll have to sing because it's Spring—
Bright days, sweet nights will lure and call;
The world takes anything at all
And tosses it with joysome ding—oh, yes, all life must have its ding—
And birds and brooks and poets sing, because 'tis Spring!

The Whys and Wherefores of Marriage Incompatibility

By DOROTHY DIX

A MAN who began life humbly, and who has achieved fame and fortune, has divorced the wife of his youth because he has outgrown her.

"I have gone the way of men, the better way," he says frankly; "it is the better way because it is the way of progress. A man of talent and ambition must go on. If his wife turns mulish and balky, it is inevitable that their ways part. The man gives the woman a chance. If she refuses to take it and to keep pace with him, and be a worthy running mate, it is her own fault that she sees him disappearing in a cloud of dust.

"I gave my wife a chance to develop with me. I provided enough money for leisure for her to study and improve herself, to keep house better, to dress better, to mingle with people who are helpful and stimulating. She refused to take advantage of any of the opportunities I offered her. Here was a case of arrested development. She stood pat where she was and wanted me to stay with her. I couldn't. I wouldn't. No man can when he feels the ability within himself to go on.

"I am sorry that my wife would not go with me. I would have preferred that she should, but the inevitable has happened. I had to progress, and she would not keep step with me—so I have left her. That is all there is to it. Divorce in such cases is as necessary as surgery is in some physical diseases."

A Brutal Truth

This successful man has stated a brutal truth in a brutal way. It is the tragedy of achievement that so often it spells domestic misery, for among those who sit in the grand stand and cheer the victor as he wins the race there is seldom his wife. She, poor, dear lady, has been left far, far behind, somewhere in the first quarterstretch.

America leads the world in the number of its divorces and the amount of its domestic infelicity. Undoubtedly one of the reasons of this is because we have no fixed classes, and such wide opportunities that the man who begins at the lowest rung of the social ladder not infrequently ends his career on the top of it.

This makes it impossible for him to know just what qualities he will need in a wife, and hence adds to the dangers of matrimony. Abroad people stay more or less consistently in "that station of life to which it has pleased heaven to call them," as the prayer book says. Also, as a general thing, they marry accordingly. If a man is a duke he marries a woman of his own social status, and who understands the duchess business. On the contrary, if he is a bricklayer he expects to be a bricklayer all the balance of his days, and he espouses another bricklayer's daughter, and they live humbly and peacefully ever after.

It's Different Here

But in America the man who began life as a bricklayer or on the slag pile, and who married a woman designed by nature to be a bricklayer's or mechanic's wife, not infrequently comes to occupy a seat in the Senate, or even the presidential chair, or he becomes a multi-millionaire with the power of a king, and more than a king's way of living. And Mrs. Wife stays just where she was. She would still be an admirable washerwoman or patcher of trousers, but she is utterly unfitted to be the wife of her husband as he is at present.

Nor is she to be blamed for this. We talk glibly about such a woman keeping up with such a husband. We might with equal justice blame the honest Percheron draft horse for not keeping up with the Arabian race horse, or the domestic hen for not soaring with the eagle. Because nature endowed a man with genius it does not follow that it also supplies talent to his wife. Nor can a man at twenty be blamed for not having enough of the spirit of prophecy to know the sort of a wife he is going to need at fifty.

That a gifted husband should outgrow his commonplace wife is very sad. It is also very sad when a gifted woman outgrows her commonplace husband. Yet the one happens as often as the other, and there is no more significant difference between the sexes than the way in which men and women meet this catastrophe in their lives.

When a man realizes that he has outgrown his wife, that she no longer speaks his language, nor shares his thoughts, and that it is as tedious to explain things to her as it is to a child, he is at first impatient, and then contemptuous of her. Then he begins to neglect her, and seek the companionship of women who belong to the new world into which he has passed, and which he knows his wife can never really enter.

Like as Dead

If he is a man with a high sense of duty he tries to make up to her for his lack of affection by giving her money. If he has the courage of his desires he pensions her and divorces her. But in any case she is really as dead to him as if the sod covered her face.

The woman who has outgrown her husband suffers all that the man does who has outgrown his wife, and more, because a woman loves to look up to her husband, she loves to admire him, and when the time comes that she can no longer do so hers is the agony of the worshipper whose idol is shattered and whose God has proved to have feet of clay.

But she hides her loneliness in her own heart. She keeps her dull husband from finding out how he wearies her, she veils his imperfections from her friends, and keeps her children from suspecting that she is their father's superior. She animates the clod, without the clod even guessing whence comes its power.

More than that, often and often, she refuses to run the race because she knows that her husband cannot keep the pace with her. There are untold brilliant women who turn their backs upon glorious careers because it would mean the wrecking of their homes.

It is only in rare cases that the woman who outgrows her husband seeks solace for it in the society of the man who is a fitting mate for her maturer intellect. She deliberately fills in her life with interests that bring her nearer to her husband, instead of taking her farther away from him, and she stays her footsteps to his slow gait, so that they can jog along together.

It is always a tragedy when either husband or wife outgrows the other, but when it happens the man usually sacrifices his wife, while the woman offers up herself on the altar.

STEAM AND SALE

By WEX JONES

Representative Goodwin of Arkansas is preparing a bill ordering United States battleships to display samples of American manufactures.

IT was a glorious spectacle to see our fleet depart,
Equipped with lines of samples that would thrill a drummer's heart.
The North Dakota led the van, the dry goods flagship she,
Flinging this signal to the breeze, "SILK SHIRTWAISTS, 92."
The dreadnought Arizona displayed along the rail
The immortal words of Lawrence. "DON'T GIVE UP THE SALE."
While, paraphrasing Perry, the Wisconsin warned the Powers,
"WHEN WE MEET THE ENEMY'S CUSTOMERS THEY'LL EVERY ONE BE OURS."

The seamen—no, no, salesmen—the salesmen were at drill,
Learning store discipline, and means of filling up the till.
The captain—please excuse us, the floorwalker—of course,
Paced proudly down the centre aisle as he watched his selling force.
The great fleet's general manager—he'd been admiral before—
Dictated red-hot ads about each mammoth floating store,
And then, inspired, he wirelessed this message through the air,
"AMERICA THIS DAY EXPECTS EACH MAN WILL SELL HIS SHARE."

Forget the Constitution, Essex and President;
Never such glorious ships as these, which sailed on business bent.
They out-advertised the British fleet; they undersold the Jap;
They swept all their competitors clean off the retail map.
And when the general manager took stock upon the cruise
He'd sold ten tons of chewing gum and a thousand pairs of shoes.
Oh, well, that general manager, as the stories of him tell,
When asked if he surrendered said, "I HAVE JUST BEGUN TO SELL."
